J.V. BOYS FACE OWEN

Although the Heritage J.V. Boys went down to defeat at the hands of the Owen J.V.s, the game was an exciting one. Coach Fox commented that "Randall Weatherman made a basket with 5 seconds left in overtime when the score was 69-67, Owen. He appeared to get fouled on the play, but the official called traveling. It was an overtime game, we were behind by 10 at the end of the first half. We played as hard as we could, and probably played our best overall game."

The players were Brett Hughes, Keith Huskins, Steve Boone, Bradley Grindstaff, Randall Weatherman, David McFee, David Hoilman and Tommy Bid-dix. (By Cindy Bodford)

Music In The Mountains

Informal Musicale

To help shake off the winter doldrums, Music in the Mountains will present "Tit for Tat, and Trombone, Too", an informal musical program, on Sunday afternoon, February 11, at the Burnsville Presbyterian Church. This program will bring to us a variety of musical styles, spanning several centuries from the baroque period to the present. Patrick Couble will sing a group of songs called "Tit for Tat" which was composed by the contemporary English composer when he was just 15 years old. The words to these charming songs are verses of Walter de la Mare. Patrick's lovely wife, Shayna Hollander will accompany him on piano.

Shayna will play three Scarlatti sonatas on this program. This 17th Century composer, an Italian by birth, spent most of his life in Spain where he was court musician to King Philip V. He is regarded as one of Spain's most famous composers. A harpsichord virtuoso, Scarlatti experimented with different keyboard techniques. Among these is the hand crossing technique used in these sonatas which he used in his compositions until he became so fat he could no longer accomplish it himself!

This is the second year that Patrick has been Artist in Residence at Mayland Tech. He studied at North Carolina School of the Arts, Stanford University and the University of Heidelberg in Germany. Shayna also studied at N.C. School of the Arts and at the New England Conservatory and Vienna Academy of Music. They have brought their music to schools, churches, Senior Citizens groups and many more gatherings in the area.

The trombone pieces will be performed by Robin Dreyer. He will play several songs from Gustav Mahler's "Songs of a Wayfarer" written in 1884 when the composer was 24 years old. These melodic songs were written for mezzo soprano and have been transcribed for trombone, with piano accompaniment. Robin will also play "Three Pieces for Trombone Alone" written in 1976 by David Cope, and a baroque bassoon sonata by Galliard, transcribed for trombone and accompanied by Shayna on harpsichord. Robin also studied at N.C. School of the Arts, and Indiana University.

The program is scheduled for 3:30. Tickets will be available at the door, $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Reeve Returns After Concert Tour

Eve Lynne Reeve has returned to Burnsville after a most successful concert tour of South Florida. Her beautiful Challis harpsichord was not tuned during the series because in the planning 24 hours were given for it to temper to each setting. Three thousand miles later it is still in tune.

The day after Christmas Eve Lynne played for the artists and writers of Grove Park in Miami. On December 29, 1978 she inaugurated the new million dollar Cultural-Educational Center of the Coral Isles Congregational Church on Plantation Key given by Roa Kraft Birch.

On January 5, 1979, a complete change of pace and different type of audience was the group of young men at Mary Help of Christians School in Tampa. This program was more a "show tune" type of music including program music from the 16th century to the present geared to what Eve Lynne felt the young men would enjoy. She was right.

On Sunday, January 7, 1979 Eve Lynne returned to the larger works in her repertoire and received her fourth standing ovation on the tour at Eckerd College in St. Petersburg. "Chamber Music in Florida" was held the following two weeks at Eckerd College and after the first week of chamber music the trip home began. It was a leisurely trip with all kinds of side excursions to visit college campuses interested in chamber music as each telephone call to Burnsville sounded like a broken record: "Ice and snow! Don't you dare bring that loaded hearse in." So between snow storms the travelers arrived home.

Florida wasn't all that warm either; but the audiences were.

Gov. Hunt's Page Program Is Teaching Aid For Kids

Governor James Hunt has instigated an ongoing page program for youngsters throughout the state in an effort to better acquaint them with the mechanics of State Government and at the same time to render a service to State Government.

Each week nine youngsters between the ages of 13-18 are appointed to serve in an office of the Governor's cabinet. They perform services of running errands, xeroxing, stuffing envelopes, answering telephones, and other comparable duties.

Each day a tour of one of the historic buildings is arranged for the pages and at the end of the week, they are presented a certificate of service, a North Carolina pin and a picture made with the Governor.

An appropriation of $71.00 per week has been made to reimburse pages for living expenses while they are in Raleigh. A list of available homes where reservations may be made for lodging accommodations will accompany the letter of appointment. These homes charge $13.00 per day for breakfast, dinner, transportation to and from the office and lodging. It will be necessary for each page to have a Social Security number before reimbursement can be made.

If you are interested in being a part of this program next summer, see Elaine Thomas in the guidance office at Mountain Heritage.

Represents Yancey On Chamber Board

The 8th Annual Meeting of the Better Business Bureau of Asheville/Western North Carolina, was held on Thursday, February 1, 1979.

At this meeting, Grace Banks of the Yancey County Chamber of Commerce was re-elected to represent Yancey County on the Board of Directors of this organization. Mr. Charles Kern, president of John Carroll, Inc., and Honorary Chairman of the Board of the Bureau, who was responsible for having this organization established to serve Western North Carolina, addressed this meeting.

In his remarks, he pointed out the reasons he felt Western North Carolina needed the services of the BBB and he revealed how well these needs have been met.

He particularly emphasized the value of the free-phone service available to all businesses and consumers in Western North Carolina. Anyone can dial free, 1-800-452-2882, and get a report on a business anywhere in the United States.

The Bureau staff is also available to help anyone who has difficulty in a business transaction getting it resolved. The BBB of Asheville/WNC is now supported by over 900 business and professional men. Three hundred of these members are from 12 counties other than Buncombe, and it is their support that makes the free phone service to the Bureau possible.
