There are two classes of students, just as there are two parts of a train, the engine and the box cars. The engines are those who lead. The box cars are those who must be box cars are those who must be led. Mr. Mason gave to the students as a requisite for being an engine the motto: "Without being told." He said: "If you can get up in the morning, come to your meals on time, go to school on time, and go to bed on time without being told, you are well on the way to being an engine." Mr. Mason also called the student's attention to the fact that it is impossible to change an engine or box car after the material in the shop has been made into one or the other. He then cnumerated the advantages of being an engine. Mr. Mason's second comparison was that of the high school graduate to the horse that finds the reins loose for the first. time. Whether or not the student will wreck his life when he is put on his own initiative after all restrictions are lifted depends on his training in regard to the use of time and money. Mr. Mason concluded his talk with four questions which he said would be more important to pass than any other college entrance examination a student might take.

These questions were:"Are you able to go to bed and get up on time without being told? Are you able to go off by yourself and study without being told?

Are you able to take an examin-ation without cheating? Are you able to carry loose change in your pockets without spend-ing it? After a few words of admonition and timely advice,

Mr. Mason closed his speech by saying that it you are not

RUSHING THE WORK

Last week we noted that a force of hands was on hand for the purpose of treating road leading to Greensboro. This work is now well under way and the pouring of stone has begun. This necessitates a detour to Greenshoro, the most feasible route being via Stokesdale, though there are one of two other routes just as good and probably a little nearer. This work will probably completed by the first of December.

We learn that a new line will be made whereby all the curves. and short curves will be eliminated. The old roadway will be left just this side of T. B. Knight, Sr.'s home and take a straight shoot from there to the home of Bill Williams beyond. the creek. Just when this grad.
