It has been 300 years since the signing of the North Carolina Charter. The 300 anniversary is being celebrated all over North Carolina this year. The theme, "An evening in colonial North Carolina" was displayed in the Murphy library. All things on display were a hundred years old or older. Some of the things on display were photostat copies of Cherokee County in 1860, and a trading post ledger that was kept by a Mr. Hunter of Murphy. This display was built during the National Library Week.

Joe Ray is the Tercentenary chairman for Cherokee County. Members on the committee are Mrs. Ed Brumby, Mrs. J. W. Davidson, Misses Kate and Lella Hayes and Miss Josephine Helgeway also shown above.

The free passes given the winners in the essay contest were given by the Murphy Swimming Committee.
