PROVIDE COVERAGE FOR MEDICAL EXPENSES

Cuz's Corner
by Bagley

A mother who participates in a car pool asks: "Would my auto insurance pay the medical bills for my passengers if they were injured in an automobile accident that is my fault?"

Yes, if medical payments coverage is purchased with your automobile insurance. This coverage pays medical bills for the passengers riding in your car, and also, it pays the bills for you and all members of your immediate family, whether you are riding in the family car or in any other auto.

Under the terms of the policy, the insurance company agrees to pay all reasonable expenses, incurred within one year of the accident, for necessary medical, surgical, X-ray and dental services, ambulance, hospital, and also professional nursing and funeral services, up to the limits declared in the policy. Payment is made regardless of who is at fault.

The choice of limits ranges from $500 to $5,000 for each person injured. The cost is surprisingly low. You should check with your insurance agent or broker to determine the amount of coverage appropriate for you, and its cost.

If I ever do make another trip away from home I'm gonna take a feather pillow along. I'll tell you why later on.

You know I'm telling you how I meet a lot of people in my glad-handing here at the dam and also about how so many of 'em tell me to come to see 'em if I'm ever in their part of the country? Well, if I'd used my head years ago, I coulda really made a good thing outta that. All I woulda had to do would have been to keep a little notebook in my pocket and write their names and addresses down when they gave me those invitations. Like I told you, though, I just never realized any of 'em actually meant it. That is, until I visited the Liddell's in Camden, Ala.

Well, if I'd kept this little book (I have one NOW) I could have planned trips to nearly any place in the U. S. pretty cheap. I've had invitations from folks all over the country and I could easily have arranged my traveling to put me in one of their cities each night.

As I also explained to you before: the traveling is not expensive for me anymore on account of I've got a Renault (Sardine Can on wheels). It's the stopping that runs into money pretty fast. So, if I'd just kept that little notebook I could have been practically a FREE LANCE RIDER years ago.

That plan sure worked out fine the first time I tried it and it took me to the Will Liddell's in Camden, Ala.

Now, after you have gotten to their house there is a scheme you have to employ in order to bring 'em around to asking you to spend the night with 'em. And this is the way you work that: Along about 8:00 or 8:30 you yawn a small yawn. This takes a little practice to perfect. And in case you want to use this plan of mine, I would advise that you get this down to a "Y" before you start out. If you make a mess out of that first little yawn then you might be outta luck on account of they might see through your scheme. If the little yawn don't get the desired results, wait a few minutes and do a big one, you know, one that just gets away from you altogether. This is your trump card, your ACE in THE HOLE, and if it don't turn the trick you might as well find it out early so you'll have time to go to a hotel—or go sleep in your car.

In my case the little yawn failed because I had got so good with it that it escaped 'em completely. This made me a little nervous but I still had the big one to go. I waited about five minutes and let 'er rip. That did it. Mrs. Liddell says, "You're going to spend the night with us; aren't you?" Now you can't say "Yes, indeed" right off the bat. What you say is, "Oh, no, Mam, I wouldn't think of putting you to all that trouble—I'll just go down to the hotel." Now this is a big lie, and you know it, and she does too, but manners demand that you beat around the bush a little bit first. So, to this hotel bit she says, "Why, you will not? We wouldn't dream of allowing you to do THAT; would we, Will?" Now husband will be trapped and he knows it and he has to agree with her that you can't possibly go to the hotel.

Then you've got it made and you can kick off your shoes and socks and start scratching between your toes with the toes of your other foot. But, don't use your fingers as this don't look too good, and, besides, you don't know 'em that well — yet. Anyway you are all set to enjoy

Deadline For Labor Survey Is Saturday

MURPHY - The deadline for the labor survey being conducted in the Murphy - Cherokee County area is Saturday, June 29.

The labor survey questionnaires have been distributed by the Murphy Chamber of Commerce within a 30-mile radius of the county seat, according to W. D. Townson, president of the Chamber. The questionnaire sheet is captioned with the words "500 Workers Needed - Would You Take A Job In A New Industrial Plant Located In The Murphy - Cherokee County Area?"

The Murphy area is being considered as a location of a new manufacturing plant.

The manufacturer must first know how many workers would be available for production jobs.

Questionnaires are available at the Murphy Chamber of Commerce office, the employment office in Murphy, any Citizens Bank and Trust Co. office, all post offices in Cherokee County, and at community stores throughout the area.

All questionnaires must be received no later than Saturday, June 29.

Townson Funeral Home was in charge.

CHARLES FLOYD, JR. MURPHY - Services for Charles Gilbert Floyd, Jr., 2-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Floyd of Rushon, Fla., who died Thursday, June 13, was held at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Reid's Chapel Methodist Church here.

The Rev. Edward Lee officiated and burial was in the church cemetery.

The family moved to Florida ten months ago.

Surviving besides the parents are a brother, Charles Edward, and three sisters, Melissa, Mary Jane, and Betty Ann Floyd all of the home, a long evening with some fine folks.

But watch 'em close and as soon as you see either of 'em yawn, big or little, you oughta ask about taking a bath before retiring. That is, if they haven't already told you where the bathroom was when you began scratching between your toes. In my case they never said a word about that, probably on account of they always done the same thing when they were by themselves.

Anyhow I got showed to the bathroom and then my bedroom and they left me to my own devices. And there I was spending the night in the Governor's Mansion — former Governor, I mean.

Now if you was to ever experience a experience like this, here's what to do if you don't need a all over bath, and I didn't cause I'd had one down in Florida. You put the stopper in the tub, turn on the water, sit on the side of the tub, and you wash your feet (you can wash one foot with the other one). This will help relieve 'em from itching. Then you wait around about 4 or 5 minutes, and then pull the stopper out. They will hear the water running out because they are down stairs where they can hear everything, and they think "What a CLEAN guest we have."

Then I went to bed. Foam rubber pillows! The abomination of mankind!!! Did you ever try to get one fixed just right? Sure as you do and wiggle your head the least bit the darn thing snaps right back like it was to begin with and you have to start all over again. Then, on top of that a cussed mocking bird started blasting off rise outside the window. I think he musta been on a BINGE, stayed on it all night long, too.

Well, when I woke up the next morning after a completely sleepless night I can tell you there were two powerfully sleepy people at the Liddell's house. Me and that darn mocking bird.

So, if I ever go off like that again I'll take one of my old fashioned feather pillows. I'll lie and tell 'em I'm allergic to foam rubber. I haven't decided what would be best to do about them mocking birds. If any of you have any ideas, I do wish you'd write and let me know cause I'm already planning another trip.
