Cuz's Corner by Bagley

Cuz Tells A Tale Of Two Sets...Of Teeth

There is so much tragedy, heartache, and disappointment happening in our sick ole world, all duly reported in our newspapers, that I kinda hate to write about something like that in my column.

However, this incident was so tragic and caused so much heartache and disappointment, and since it received absolutely no notice from the press, I think it is high time you were let in on it. It did receive some mention, though, on a local radio program, but this was so brief that I'm afraid it failed to impress you folks with its calamitous gravity.

I feel kinda guilty about having waited so long to cover this story here in my column. I realize now, that in all fairness to the person involved, it should have been done before she and her family moved plumb outta this country.

If I had written it then it would have allowed a lot more people to send their condolences and sympathy in a variety of ways. I couldn't think of but just a few ways to condole her. And, to tell you the truth, from what I could find out, nothing I ever said condole her one bit.

If I could have actually seen her and talked to her in person during her extreme grief I think maybe I could have made her feel lots better. But she was so stricken with grief and everything that she didn't want to see anybody, and least of all me.

I don't think it was so much that she didn't want to see anybody as it was that she didn't want anybody to see her.

You can readily understand how difficult this would make the problem of condoling anyone when you can't sit down, look 'em in the teeth, and cry with 'em. But that's the way she is --- very brave. She wanted to suffer and bear her grief alone.

She is a lot different from me because I always enjoyed having folks sympathize and condole me to my face. But not her. And she sure missed getting a lot of both by having her attitude.

I'd better tell you who this lady is so you can begin to sympathize with her if you want to. She is the wife of my former pastor. I won't mention her name because I am sure, knowing her, that she would prefer to remain anonymous. But I don't see much chance of it.

To keep you from getting confused over which former pastor I'd better tell you: it was the one just before the one we have now. That oughta pinpoint her pretty good in case any of you want to send her any belated condolences.

This lady --- I'll call her Helen, that isn't her real name, just a nickname that I'm using her so she can ever remain anonymous, because she liked to suffer alone and out of sight of her friends.

Anyway, she was in the bathroom one night giving Johnny C. a bath. That is his real name and I don't hesitate to use it because he don't care about any anonymity. After she got him out of the tub, dried off, and pajama'd she decided to also bathe her pretty sto-bought molars.

That's when all the improbables conspired to become actualities and this misery provoking tragedy happened in a split second. This is the way it went: according to the best I could reconstruct the sequence of events. I will have to admit there are some small details that I am in some doubt about --- perhaps you can figure them out.

She was singing away (all preacher's wives are happy and sing a lot) as she carefully washed her dentures. Johnny C. triggered the Water C. and at that awesome instant Helen dropped her beautiful China Clippers, you know where, and they disappeared forever.

She let out a piercing, horrifying scream. Her entire bunch of younguns rushed pell mell to the scene. You see they all figured it was, at least, Johnny C. that had gone down the drain.

No, I'm kidding. Now this is really what happened: She very calmly and serenely walked out and into the bedroom where her husband lay peacefully in the arms of Morpheus and just as calmly announced, "Mr. C., Johnny C. just flushed my teeth down the Water C. Mr. C. said "I see." You see, neither of these two ever gets excited.

Immediate steps were taken to get her some brand new choppers. The dentist worked overtime taking impressions, etc., to get her new ones in jig time as she couldn't go to Church or nothing in the meantime.

Well, it wasn't so much that she couldn't as it was she wouldn't during this interval. Now these first new choppers were ready before you could hardly turn around, but they got lost in the mail. She remained calm as usual and finally got new set #2.

The imponderable question in my mind that remains unanswered to this day is "In what vessel was she attempting to clean her teeth when this happened?"

Her first time back at Church we sang her a parody of the Happy Birthday Song, substituting, of course, the word teeth for birth. It was pretty, too, and she enjoyed it so much. I could tell she did because I watched her as we sang and she sat there and gnashed her new sto-bought teeth the whole time.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE
Text Hebrews 12:1, 2
When the Lord says, you, you embarked upon a life very different from anything you had known before. II Corinthians 5:17, states "Therefore if any man be Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away, behold, all things are become new."

When the Lord performed His work of grace in your heart everything was new, clean, and exciting. The things you once loved, you no longer love. The things you once did not care for, you now enjoy. Why? Because being "in Christ" has made you a totally different person.

Being a Christian is a many sided affair. By this I mean, one assumes new responsibilities, duties, habits, and fields of service. We find this idea conveyed in our text in Hebrews.

Verse one states, "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses. . . ."

"Compassing about with witnesses," tells us that the Christian life is a public life. Jesus said, "ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid. Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." This world is a dark, cold, and unfriendly place for many people. It does not and indeed cannot offer the much needed assurance of peace and security to a sin-sick soul. But the Christian can be an example of a secure soul in an insecure world.

Paul writes in Philippians Chapter 2 and verse 15, "That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world; Holding forth the word of life."

It is our responsibility, and we should consider it a privilege to be the type of Christian whose life reflects the glory of God, and the peace and security that comes only to those whose lives have been changed by His power and grace. We are compassed about with witnesses.

What type of witnesses are we?
