Votes By Precints-Cherokee County

As was expected, Preyer got his biggest vote in the heavily populated Piedmont, Moore ran strongest in the mountains and Lake piled up his margin mostly in the eastern counties.

In from a statement Charlotte, Allen A. Bailey, Lake's campaign manager, said that Lake had four possible decisions to make: support Moore, support Preyer, go fishing, and the fourth is being investigated. Robert W. Scott, former state Grange master and son former Gov. and U.S. Senator W. Kerr Scott, ran up a sizeable lead in a threeway race for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant governor. However, House Speaker Clifton Blue won the right to call for a runoff. Blue said he probably would ask a runoff after conferring with

Planning Board Reviews Murphy Flood Report

review of a preliminary land use study at its regular meeting Thursday, May 21. In order to include the consideration of lands along Hiwassee Reservoir the Planning Board invited members of the TVA Local Flood Relations Staff to be present to discuss the Murphy flood problem and along the reservoir the TVA representatives reviewed with the Planning Board the 1961 TVA report, "Floods Hiwassee River, Valley River and Peachtree Creek.

It was pointed out that town and county officials in the Murphy area have realized for some time that local flood problems must be recognized and considered, if the best over-all plan for development of the area is to be effected, The of ective of the Murphy flood report was to provide data that would be useful to the community leaders in working out the best use of land which is subject to flooding and in guiding development of the local areas bordering the streams. The initial report was prepared and presented to officials of Murphy in 1959, At that time copies of the report were distributed to community officials, newspapers, libraries, local industries, the Chamber of MURPHY - The Murphy Commerce, and others having Planning Board continued its a real need for the data included. The report was revised in 1961.

The report covers three significant phases of the flood situation in the area.

The first brings together record of the largest known floods of the past. The second treats of the Regional Flood. which is derived from a study of floods and storms in the nearby geographic region generally within 70 miles of Murphy. The third develops the Maximum Probable Flood.

Floods of this magnitude are considerably larger than any that have occurred in the past. They are the floods of infrequent occurrence which are considered in planning protective works such dams or levees--the failure of which might be disastrous. In reviewing the flood re-port the Planning Board learned that much of the flood plain land within the corporate limits of the city is below the maximum pool elevation of Hiwassee Reservoir and has little development potential, However, land adjacent to the TVA reservation limit and up-stream from it does have substantial development po-tential. Most of the land in the flood plain was purchased by TVA, but a number of structures outside the re-servation limit are subject to flood damage. largest known floods on the streams in the Murphy vicinity occurred in the three-year period 1897 to 1899. The highest recent floods on these streams were those of February 1936 and January 1957. 1957 flood in Murphy would have been considerably greater if it had not been for regulation of Chatuge re-servoir. The 1957 flood is several feet lower than the large floods that may reasonably be expected in the future,

The discussion of the Regional Flood indicates that greater floods than those experienced so far may reasonably be expected at Murphy. Based on the magnitude of floods that have occurred on neighboring streams, future floods may occur which are about 10 feet higher than the highest known past floods. The Maximum Probable Flood would be even higher.

The Murphy report is one of a number that TVA has made to aid communities in the Tennessee Valley, Much of the

has been carring on since its beginning in con-nection with its water nection with resources throughout the Tennessee Valley. In its regular program TVA has assembled information on rainfall, runoff and other technical data bearing on occurrence and magnitude of floods in localities throughout the region, When Murphy quested information on the local situation TVA drew on the Murphy flood report, Those present at the Planning Board meeting were: Joe Ray, Chairman; Alden Coward, operations Vice - Chairman: Fred Christopher and Mary Faye Brumby, Planning Board members; Charles Johnson, City Clerk; Otis F. Jeffries, resident of Murphy employed at TVA; Charles Cunningham, planner with Western North Carolina Regional Planning Commission; MarvinS, Shadel and Glenn R. Wall, Local Flood this data, supplementing it Relations Staff, TVA.
