Orville Freeman (right), Secretary of Agriculture, and D. A. Williams, Administrator of the Soil Conservation Service, after signing a modernized basic Memorandum of Understanding between the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Clay County Soil and Water Conservation District.

HAYESVILLE - A new basic memorandum of understanding has recently been signed between the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Clay County Soil and Water Conservation District.

The Clay County SWCD Board is made up of M. H. Payne, chairman; Wayne G. West, vice-chairman; Neal Cabe, secretary; and Clifton Penland, member.

These non-paid citizens form a co-ordinating group to direct the conservation program in Clay County. They are assisted by Agricultural Agencies, private and public groups, banks, churches, school groups, and others.

Mr. Freeman has recognized the progressive action of the Clay SWCD Supervisors in up-dating their Memorandum of Understanding with the Department. He has pointed out that this is an important step in helping private land-owners move forward more effectively in their Soil and Water Conservation efforts.

To quote him, "We are on the threshold of a new era in the management of our resources --- of land and water, forest and wildlife --- by our people."

"I am convinced that your Soil and Water District has an important part to play in giving reality to our broadened concepts of conservation and wise land use. I urge you to push forward in every way you can conceive to achieve maximum advancement in the conservation and development of soil and water resources within your District."

D. A. Williams, Administrator of the Soil Conservation Service, also conveyed to the members of the District Board his compliments for their foresight and vision in broadening the concepts of conservation and good land use in the District.

Mr. Williams also commended the District Board for recognizing the new challenges and opportunities which lie ahead in this field.

HAYESVILLE - One Clay County resident has been selected by the U. S. Dept. of Labor to participate in a crash program to train more than 2,000 people in the techniques of counseling disadvantaged young people.

Mrs. Inez Kahn was the lady selected from Clay County. The announcement was made today by John Ellis, manager of the Employment Security Commission Office in Murphy. He said the successful applicants were selected from more than 20,000 persons who took the nationwide examinations for the training positions which were held on June 27 and July 1.

"There were 36 North Carolinians chosen," said Mr. Ellis. "Most of them have already received telegrams directing them to report to the University of West Va. and the University of Georgia for a six to twelve week training period. Mrs. Kahn was assigned to the University College of Law in West Va."

"During training they will take the State merit examination for youth advisor or counselor aide to be hired by the State to provide a skilled corps of people for youth serving programs."

The applicants were chosen after the U. S. Dept. of Labor announced a "nationwide crash program" to recruit some 2,000 persons to work with disadvantaged and poverty-stricken young people.
