'Count-Down' For Holidays Gets Under Way In Earnest

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This article was presented to the Scout by Mrs. Mary Faye Brumby. Her sister, Grace M. Matlock, wrote the article for the Cobb County Times, Marietta, Ga.)

Each year, about this time, I declare that the Holiday season will find me cool and poised - that THIS Christmas will be a period of quiet rejoicing; of leisurely decoration of the house and faithful church attendance. The gifts will be selected and bought during the Fall sales, and the cards addressed and mailed on time. None of that hectic, frantic dashing out to shop--to track down that elusive perfect gift for Aunt Hattie, and to grab something--just anything--to wrap and place under the Christmas tree. Oh, no, not this time; everything will be in order--gifts wrapped, name-tagged, and stored away, the baking done--after all, what is the freezer for?

Somehow it never seems to work out that way for me. If the pattern of your days resembles mine in the least, you have a lot in common with the mountain lady who complained that she couldn't get anything done for "doing the things." The family still gets hungry, clothes get dirty, and the house has to be cleaned with monotonous regularity. To paraphrase the deodorant ad, "the hours and days pass into weeks, and there goes your time," until, with the suddenness of a clap of thunder, it's Christmas week!

Now, the count-down begins in earnest! Seven shopping days 'til Christmas! Six shopping days 'til Christmas! And where can you find that Cougar Jim Tank Gun? WHY do the stores understock that toy, and then advertise it to the skies on TV, so that a little boy's Christmas will be a bust without one? The shops are out of navy blazers, size 36, the most important item for your teenage son, and they won't have anymore until after Christmas! The salesman suggests that you give the young man a gift certificate, and hints that your son could do his own shopping better, anyway. That may be true, but you have a mental picture of your son, forlornly holding a piece of paper on Christmas morning, when he had planned to wear the blazer on his date that night. So, on to another men's store, and another, and another one across town, until finally, a salesman says casually, "Yes, Ma'am, we have several navy blazers, size 36." By that time, you are light-headed and slightly hysterical, and you almost kiss him.

Hallelujah! That is the last of the shopping (if you have not forgotten to put someone's name on the list). Anyway, all of the important gifts are now bought and it is only the day before Christmas Eve.

Now, to hurry home, prepare the family's supper, wash the dishes, iron for an hour or two, bake the cakes and pies, polish the silver, and wash the best china. Oh, and while you're ironing, don't forget the Santa and reindeer tablecloth - Christmas would not be the same without it! While engaged in all of this feverish activity, the radio is playing Christmas carols. The program is sponsored by a local department store which reminds you that you only have ONE SHOPPING DAY left before Christmas!

Then, just before midnight, a lovely voice sings "Silent Night" and you remember the real meaning of Christmas. You leave the kitchen and turn off all of the lights except those on the tree in the living-room. You sit there in front of the fireplace feeling a happiness you have not experienced since this time, last year.

You are fairly certain that next Christmas will find you just as unprepared, but you're glad that it is time for "Peace on earth, good will to men."

Letters To Santa

Dear Santa: Please bring me a Betty Beauty Parlor Doll and a cake mix set and a big toy stove. Love, Marsha Barber

Dear Santa, I want a football, top, airplane, and some candy. I want a puzzle and that is about all. You be sure to bring it. Love, Wayne Stiles

Dear Santa: I want a horse (a live one) for Christmas. Please bring my brother a bicycle, and bring all the other little children something for Christmas. Thank you, Teresa Mintz, Andrews

Dear Santa Clause, I am a good boy. And I want a Roy Rogers gun set. And I want a toy rifle. I want a boy's watch. I want a cowboy hat and some games and a puzzle.

I am in the third grade. Love, Robbie Brendle

Dear Santa Clause, I want a watch, a doll, games and anything else you can bring. I am in the first grade and make good grades. I will try to be a good girl. Thank you, Debbie Brendle

Dear Santa Clause, I want a doll for Christmas. I want a doll that really talks. Don't disappoint me, Santa. From Paula Jean Craig.

Presented to us— for usefulness to you!

For the second year in a row, in recognition of our usefulness to those we serve, Southern Railway System has won the Golden Freight Car Award. This prized "Oscar" of the railroad industry is presented annually by Railway Progress Institute. No railroad has ever before won it twice.

To us, the Golden Freight Car is more than a cherished trophy. It is public acknowledgment that the people of the South are benefiting daily from Southern's constant efforts to provide better and lower-priced transportation. It will be a constant reminder to us that we must do an even better job.

This unprecedented recognition of our sincere and continuing efforts to increase our usefulness to those we serve is deeply appreciated by all of us on Southern. In the future, as in the past, we will go on doing everything in our power to provide ever-improving freight transportation at the lowest possible prices - saving money for both shippers and consumers.
