

Letters To Santa

Dear Santa,
I am a little girl. My name is Donna Westmoreland and I am nine years old. I am in the third grade and go to Ranger School.
I want a doll named Tressy and I want her clothes. Her hair grows. I am glad when Christmas comes because it is fun. Christmas is my favorite holiday. I like the bells and the bright lights and the Christmas trees.

have fun with the toys you bring us.
I am sure other boys and girls have fun with them, too.
You bring us good toys, and are nice to me. You are nice to other boys and girls.
I do not know what else I want.
You are a nice man.
Love,
Marsha & Terry Waggoner

Welcoming Christmas With Light Old Custom

In olden days, the Yule log and candles made Christmas welcome with bright light. With the coming of the electric light bulb, Christmas lighting moved outside the home onto yards and home exteriors.

Today, more and more people are welcoming Christmas with light, both inside and outside the home. Some enter community or garden club projects, following a set theme. And some decorate with light for the Christmas season through sheer exuberance of the holiday spirit.

Whatever your reason for using Christmas lighting, you'll find a wealth of items to use for it right at home. Funnels, bits of screen wire, empty flower pots, bare branches, heavy cardboard-all can be transformed into charming Christmas decorations with a bit of imagination and ingenuity.

Scraps of screen wire, for instance, can be fashioned into an attractive holly spray for your front door. First, you'll cut, free hand, big holly leaves from the screen wire, then run a piece of florist wire through the center to make the leaf vein and to secure the leaves to the main branch. This branch can be a piece of aluminum clothesline or a cut wire coat hanger, bent into a crude S-shape.

When you've fastened your leaves to the main branch, you'll spray the whole decoration with gold paint, then attach your smallest red Christmas ornaments (big red beads may be used) along the main branch. Next step is to carefully conceal and adjust a gold 150-watt PAR spot lamp to light the entire doorway.

Another attractive arrangement for the door can be made from small, empty flower pots, pine branches, and Christmas ribbon. The flower pots, painted either silver or gold and hung upside down, nestle into the greenery (arranged in a big spray and tied with Christmas ribbon) as Christmas bells. To furnish lighting inside the bells, you'll use pin-type candelabra sockets and small Christmas tree bulbs.

In all of your arrangements, lighting will furnish the magic touch. In using lighting, though, a word of caution is in order. All cords used must be in good condition, and for outdoor use, must be weather-proof for safety.

Now, ransack your home for bits of usable materials. Visit your dime store for such items as beads, glitter, and traditional ornaments--and welcome this Christmas with light!

The Christmas Lighting Contest, sponsored jointly by the Murphy Power Board and Radio Station WKRK will be held again this season. The contest has proven a great success over the past few years and has created much public interest and participation by an increasing number of people each year.

The judging will be on two themes this year, as it was last. Prizes of $25 each will go to the best overall theme, and $25 to the best religious theme. Fifteen dollars will go each, to the best lighted door with a general Christmas theme, and $15 to door with best religious theme. In the same manner, a window judged best in each category will be awarded $10 each.

More and more people today are welcoming Christmas with light, both inside and outside the home, and the sponsors this year urge each and everyone to join in making Murphy prettier than ever this Christmas.

Let's all let our homes say "Merry Christmas" to all who see them this year.

Judging will take place during the week of December 21. Winners will be announced on Christmas Eve.

NO MORE MONEY
Funds for the 1964 ACP have been depleted. We will not have enough money to process all the requests that we have on hand.

PLANT TREES?
If you would like to set out trees, we can take your order at any time. These orders for trees will be filled as soon as possible.

BURLEY MARKET OPENS HIGH

The burley tobacco market opened Monday, November 30, with an average sale price above last year. Several farmers have reported back sales averaging around $65.00 per cwt.

The Tobacco Marketing Cards should be returned to the ASCS Office as soon as the tobacco is sold. The quicker the cards are returned, the less chance the farmers have of losing the cards.

HIGH HOG PRICES PREDICTED

Due to reduced slaughter, hog prices are likely to show strength through mid-1965. The 1964 pig crop is down roughly 7 percent from last year. The down-trend probably will continue well into next year; early signs of the pig crop from December through February in the corn belt point to a cut of perhaps 13 percent from a year ago.
