Bulldogs Scramble, Hang On For 7 -Win 0

The Murphy Bulldogs winning every other game, defeat-ed a good Tellico Plains, Tennessee team, Friday night, 7-0, to run their record to three wins against 2 losses. In a hard fought contest, the Bulldogs played one of the best games that we have seen on the local field in quite a while. Several times the Tellico lads could have posted scores on the board had the pass receivers been able to hold on to many passes thrown them by a very fine passer and quarterback by the name of Walls.

In Walls, Tellico presented one of the best all round back field men that this writer has seen in a long time. Unlike a lot of runners in high school football, this boy Walls ran just a bit harder and when about to be tackled, managed to put on a little more steam and was hard to bring down and was always a threat when-

Congressman Taylor Urges Support Of Road Bonds

(Editor's Note: The following is a statement by 11th District Congressmen Roy A. Taylor in support of the road bond issue. This newspaper favors and supports the road bond issue. Read this message carefully. Roads can mean a lot to any section. Roads can make or break us here in Western North Carolina. This newspaper urges you to vote FOR the Road Bond Issue. We want to see this section made, not broken.)

I will vote on November 2, for the 300 million dollar bond issue and encourage all other North Carolina citizens to do the same.

The 29 Western North Carolina counties eligible for Appalachian road funds have more to gain and more to lose in this road bond election than any other section of the State. A vast network of highways stretching across the State's Appalachian region has been approved. The 80 to 100 million dollars of Federal Appalachian funds planned for Western North Carolina must be matched in party by state funds. The road bond issue is essential in order to make available matching funds and the full utilization of the Appalachain Road Develop ment Program.

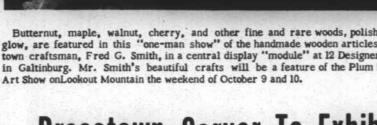

Mountain county voters will be very unwise if they stay at home and assume that the road bonds will be approved without their help. We should give the same overwhelming vote for the road bonds that we gave in Governor Moore's election.

The road bonds can be financed from the existing tax structure without any increase in gasoline taxes or other taxes. The key to development in Western North Carolina is roads. Down through the years, the western counties have missed the mainstream of economic development because of inadequate transportation facilities. We now stand on the threshold of the greatest economic opportunity in our history. Both the Federal government and the State government are trying to help us remove the barrier of isolation caused by inadequate highways. On November 2, we have an opportunity to help ourselves.

Any Western North Carolina citizen who does not go to the polls and vote for the road bond issue should stop complaining about the region's inadequate highways! Congressman Roy A. Taylor

ing" (nearly 13,000 came last Commissioners Consider Rural Development Unit

The Cherokee County Commissioners have given notice that they intend to create Cherokee County. A special meeting has been called for Tuesday, October 19 to consider passage of the resolution. The announcemnt of the Commissioners intent and notice are carried in a legal notice in this issue of the Scout. According to J. E. Graves, clerk to the Board of Commissioners, the Rural Development Authority is connected with the Farmers Home Administration. Mr. Graves went on to say that a board of five committeemen will be selected with authority to buy land for recreational centers and housing projects. The object of the project is to "bring people in, bring in more money". The Cherokee County authority will be set up with all powers and authorities as provided by the North Carolina General Assembly of 1965. Mr. Graves added that neither this action, or any subsequent results of it, would ever place any financial obligation on Cherokee County. Therefore, no need could ever arise for the assessment of any taxes to carry out the above indicated Rural Development Authority. In fact, the law specifically prohibits any resulting taxes, Graves said.
