Andrews By-Pass Gets Approval

Mayor Percy B. Ferebee has received a letter from the State Highway Commission in Raleigh advising that the Commission's Thoroughfare Advance Planning Department has approved the preliminary Andrews Thoroughfare Plan as recommended by the Town Board of Aldermen last January 24.

Under the proposed plan the State Highway Department will take over the maintenance of certain streets, and the building of a by pass.

The by pass would start at a point on U. S. 19 east of Andrews near Valleytown road intersection and proceed north and west rejoining U. S. 19 near the bridge west of Andrews in the vicinity of District Memorial Hospital.

This route would enable through traffic to by pass the town's business section thereby alleviating downtown congestion and motor noise, as well as being a benefit to local motorists and shoppers.

Grading, draining and leveling the sites of American Thread Company's new plant to be built near Marble has been started with 10 workers under the supervision of Herman H. West and Company and Harold Wells, both of Murphy.

Grading machinery, including four bulldozers and five scrapers, are being used to move a total of 15,000 cubic yards of dirt to level the site.

This work is expected to be completed, weather permitting, by May 15. Construction of the main building is planned to start early this summer.

Unofficially it is reported that the new plant is expected to be in operation sometime in November of this year.

E. B. Shaw, President of American Thread, announced that the engineering firm of C. T. Main of Charlotte, N. C. has been retained to design the ultra-modern 250,000 square foot plant.

"These plans comprise part of the program of planned expansion and when this mill is completed, it will provide our company with the additional production facilities necessary to accommodate the rising demand for our thread and yarn," Shaw said.

American Thread now operates two plants in North Carolina as well as four other plants located in four different states from Maine to Ga. Its newest plant is located near Brevard, N. C., and is said to be one of the South's ten most modern spinning mills.

Two Year Old Murphy Boy Attacked By Large Dogs

A two-year-old Murphy boy was attacked by two large dogs Monday afternoon while playing in his yard on Wells Street.

Eddie McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude R. McDonald, was rushed to a local hospital suffering numerous wounds of the face and neck. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald told the Scout that the dog's vicious attack on their son opened a gash in the corner of his left eye to the lower part of his cheek, another across his cheek to the ear, and made a hole in the roof of his mouth.

Mr. McDonald, hearing the screams of his son, ran out into the yard and beat the dogs off. A neighbor, also hearing the screams, brought a gun and shot one of the dogs, and six or eight ran off.

Shortly after the incident, several of the dogs returned and another one was killed. In the past two days a total of 14 dogs have been killed in the McDonald yard.

The heads of the two dogs killed Monday afternoon have been sent to Raleigh for rabies test.

Scout Columnist General Taylor Meet After 43 Years

Ernest P. L. Schoeler, an ex-army Sergeant, who now writes the weekly column 'Both Sides Of The Coin' for the Cherokee Scout, met with another old soldier, General Maxwell D. Taylor, in Asheville last week.

Two old soldiers, whose paths last crossed 43 years ago in Hawaii, met again in Asheville when Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor spoke at Asheville-Biltmore College.

In 1923, Ernest P. L. Schoeler was a sergeant with the Third Engineers at Schofield Barracks when a young second lieutenant fresh from West Point joined the regiment.

and he jumped it, stowing away on an oil tanker bound for San Pedro, Calif.

He recalls he got along fine in the United States until this nation entered the war and he became a registered enemy alien. After the war, in order to obtain U. S. citizenship, he enlisted in the Army and was sent to Hawaii where the sergeant first encountered the young lieutenant.

When World War II came along, despite the injured back, Schoeler went back into the service - this time with the Coast Guard as a boatswain's mate where he served until an accident on board a destroyer escort left him with an injured leg that eventually had to be amputated.

When Gen. Taylor began making his brilliant World War II record, following that with service in Korea and as ambassador to South Viet Nam, Schoeler started following the general's career closely.

And when Taylor's talk was scheduled at A-B College, Schoeler said "I think it's the same man who gave us callisthenics at Schofield, but I'm not quite sure."

Now he is.

You've Done All Right

Back in 1923 Ernest P. L. Schoeler (right) was in an engineer outfit stationed at Schofield Barrack and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor (left) was a second lieutenant, handed the task of giving callisthenics to Schoeler's unit. They met again, the first time in 43 years, Wednesday night when Taylor spoke at Asheville Biltmore College.

We paid a visit on a very good friend last Thursday down at Blue Ridge, Ga., Ray Joseph. Ray and his wife, Mary have a lot of friends in Murphy. In fact Ray said he didn't realize how many friends they did have until Mary got sick and his phone started ringing. Although Mary is in the hospital, we're happy to report that she is expected to be back home with her family, healthy as ever within two months. If you would like to cheer Mary up with a card, her address is: Ward 306-B, Battey State Hospital, Rome, Georgia.

Over in Ebinger, Germany, the agony column of a local newspaper carried an ad from a husband: "No longer responsible for my wife's debts." She responded with an ad: "Dear Theo, have no sorrow with name there's nothing one can borrow."

We can't think of but two things that will make a red-blooded American male come into a photography studio and have a picture made - politics and his wife - in that order. With politics running hot and heavy, we sho have made a batch of pictures in the last few weeks, and if we do say so ourselves, some of 'em look pretty good. So, ladies, if you have been trying to get that grouchy old husband to have a picture made, we may already have just the one you want. Give us a call and we'll be glad to make you an engagement, in color if you like.

We don't want to give the impression that we want to start a lonely hearts club, 'cause the last thing we want to do is put some unsuspecting widow in the hands of a Bluebeard. We noticed in a daily paper that folks had been writing in telling how many widows were in the different churches and the Methodist won. Wonder how many there are in Cherokee and Clay County churches. This could be a way to get some bachelors in church, ya know. I'll bet on the Baptist.

There just ain't no way to run off and hide anymore. A color brochure came in the mail the other day advertising the Varsity Drive-In in Atlanta as the world's largest drive-in. Lo and behold, in one of the color photographs stood Scout Advertising Manager Red Schuyler and his family munching on them good vittles. Everybody wants to get in on the act.

You really shouldn't have to be reminded again, but Friday April 15 is tax filing deadline. Unless you have a friend in government and he'd better be a good one, you'd better get with this filing business.

Correction

Reporting the Superior Court news in the March 31 issue of The Cherokee Scout it was stated that David Pullum of Andrews was given a 30-day suspended sentence and fined $50 plus cost on charges of drunk driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

The court records show that the drunk driving charge was non-suited and the State took a nol pros with leave concerning leaving the scene of an accident charge.

The 30-day suspended sentence and $50 fine plus cost levied at Mr. Pullum was for resisting arrest. The management of the Scout regrets this error.
