Matheson Resigns; Mrs. Adams Named Tax Collector

Mrs. Clara Mae Adams has been appointed County Accountant and Tax Collector by the Cherokee County Board of Commissioners. She succeeds Carlyle P. Matheson whose resignation the commissioners accepted as of June

Matheson told the Scout his resignation was "due in part to a minor heart condition" he suffers from and the lengthy illness of his wife. While he felt for some time that he needed a rest, he pointed out that he stayed on the job until the new county budget was ready and much of the work on the airport bond issue had been completed.

He said it had been a privelege to work with the county commissioners and that the public had been very cooperative during his term of service.

Matheson is "undecided" at this time on his planned race for county commissioner. He is one of the republican nominees for the office in the Andrews district. He said if his health permits, he may actively seek the office.

For High Score

Chief of Police Murphy Blaine Staloup made the highest score recorded during the two days he attended the firearms school at Cherokee, June 21 and 22. Stalcup scored 89.6 out of a possible 100 points.

The three-day school was sponsored by the National Park Service and the Cherokee Indians Police Department. It was conducted under the supervision of Joseph L. Zimmerman, special agent with the FBI in Charlotte.

About 60 police officers from six western North Carolina counties, members of the Cherokee Indians Police Department and rangers with the National Park service recleved instruction in the firing of the 38 caliber pistol. The school was held at the new firing range at the Ranger's station.

SHC Approves Work At Hanging Dog

Work to be done in Cherokee County was included in contracts approved by the State Highway Commission in Ral eigh last week.

The Commission approved a $9,200 contract for two-tenths The targets used were out- of a mile of grading, draining, lines of the human body. Points paving and erosion control on were awarded on the basis Hanging Dog Creek Road. Funds for this will come from last year's road bond issue. Surfacing work totaling $6,000 was also approved for Cherokee County.

The opening of the Andrews swimming pool has been delayed due to the bad weather last week. Butch Sursavage, pool manager, said the rain last week prevented his crew from completing the painting of the pool. He is hopeful it will be ready to use by Monday.

The pool, sponsored by Four-Square Community Action this year, is receiing a complete "paint-up,fix-up" treatment before being opened. Mrs. Inez Kahn, director of Four-Square free swimming lesson program, said lessons will begin as soon as the pool is ready. She stated that announcements would be made on the two Murphy radio stations as to the exact date and time for lessons to begin.
