Extension News

Among the early spring-flowering trees the flowering dogwood, Cornus Florida, is regarded by many as unrivaled in attractiveness either in its natural woodland habitat or in cultivated landscape plantings. The tree often reaches 15 to 20 feet in height with a low, broad head and tiers of horizontal branches. It can also be trained in the form of a large broad shrub with multiple branches from the base. The four large bracts surrounding each cluster of tiny yellow flowers opening in early spring produce the showy display of white for which the tree is famed. Besides the typical form with white bracts there are pink varieties. In autumn the leaves turn to gorgeous shades of orange, scarlet, and crimson, equaled by only a few other trees. The bright red fruit borne in small clusters adds to the colorful autumn effect. In the winter the button-shaped buds are prominent on the tips of the greenish or reddish-brown twigs. The dogwood grows best in light shade, but will tolerate full sun. The most favorable soil is moist, fertile loam slightly acid to neutral. The addition of peat or leafmold improves nearly all garden soils for the dogwood. After the trees have recovered from

THE THREE TOP WINNERS in the Pinewood Derby were (l to r) Phillip Rumble, first place; Steve Christy, second place; and Steve Dockery, third place.

Cub Scouts Hold Pinewood Derby

Cub Scouts of Pack 405 in Murphy held one of their big events of the year, the Pinewood Derby, on March 27 in the Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church.

The cars that are raced in the derby are pieces of pine-wood that the Cub Scouts whittle into the shape of a car with Dad's help.

The tiny cars can not exceed 2 3/4 inches in width and 7 3/8 inches in length and must not weigh more than five ounces.

The derby is held on a track 31 feet long and eight inches wide. The cars start from gravity.

Each den's winner is entered in the finals. The winners were Steve Dockery, Marty Douglas, Phillip Rumble, Darrell Fox, Steve Christy and Rusty Hughes.

The derby winner was Phillip Rumble while Steve Christy came in second and Steve Dockery finished third.

The Pack's next scheduled event is a picnic on May 22. Registration for next year will be held at that time.
