Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

This war must be won:

In this far land across the sea, there is not one thing that interests me, I'm only here to fight the Cong, then go back home where I belong. The sun beats hot on sand of white, and bullets echo through the night. No one wants to fight this war, just being here is such a bore, the same routine from day to day. The Cong harass and then run away. Not one of us is having fun, but still this war must be won.

have hid our face to keep from coming to this place. We are all fighting vigorously to keep our states and families free.

Thirteen months of fear and pain. We sacrifice in hopes to gain a good word from a close friend and being this war to an end. So if you are marching with the crowd protesting all your thoughts aloud, please stop the march and all the silly cheer. Let us decide, we are over here.
