Democrats To Study State Organization

RALEIGH - Gov. Robert W. Scott last Friday named a 60 member Study Commission to analyze the N. C. Democratic Party structure and make recommendations for updating the Plan of Organization. Wilson, Attorney James Hunt, former State YDC President who currently serves as assistant to the state party chairman, was named general chairman of the commission. "Serving with him" Scott said, "will be former governors and former chairmen of the party, lawyers and lawmakers, educators and students, labor leaders and businessmen, young Democrats and old Democrats, black Democrats and white Democrats and business women and housewives. "In brief, those chosen come from all walks of life and represent a number of political philosophies. This is how it should be, for the proposed Study Commission's work surely will be doomed if all the people are not represented in such an important undertaking." Scott pointed out the group was large because he wanted to insure a broad base of representation at each of four regional hearings which will be held across the state by the Commission. Then he turned to the Party's current Plan of Organization and made some observations: "I am for change," he said, "but not just for the sake of change. Someone noted recently that there has been only one major change in the Plan of Organization in the past 50 years. I, for one, loathe that as an indication that our current Party plan can't all wrong."

The Governor went on to say this did not mean that thorough study was necessary to strengthen our rules, be more specific others and throw out the know n to be obsolete. "But I hope you'll keep in mind that the basic plan may be good or it could not have survived this long," emphasized. "For that reason I would urge commission members not to scrap every paragraph just for the sake of writing a new one...don't make proposals which would benefit one group at the cost of another...and don't discard good proposals just because they don't fit into your plan. How the party should be run."

Scott said he hoped to meet with commission members from time to time to discuss various proposals and exchange ideas. He said through such exchange he was certain the group could come up with a plan acceptable to all. Finally, he said: The job ahead will not be an easy one. It probably will be a thankless one. You probably will be harassed and pressured from all sides...damned if you do and damned if you don't. But you must complete the job. Named to serve on the committee in addition to Hunt are:

Taylor Urges Staking Of Parkway Extension

WASHINGTON - U. S. Rep. Roy A. Taylor announced last Thursday that $100,000 is contained in the new Interior Department appropriation bill to enable engineers to establish the center line of the proposed extension of the Blue Ridge Parkway.

The bill received final House and Senate approval Wednesday and has been sent to the White House for signature. The 180-mile extension, authorized by the 90th Congress as the result of legislation sponsored by Congressman Taylor, will be constructed between Beech Gap near Mt. Pisgah to the vicinity of Kennesaw Mountain National Battlefield Park north of Atlanta and Marietta Ga.

The states of North Carolina and Georgia are ready to purchase the rights-of-way, which they will then donate to the National Park Service for the roadway. However, the land acquisition cannot proceed until the center line has actually been staked out. Much of the extension, especially in North Carolina, will cross forest service land already in federal ownership. Rep. Taylor said there is an "immediate urgency" for the two states to acquire all privately-held property needed for the route before rising land costs escalate further.

Immediate acquisition of the land is also necessitated by information that in at least one area, construction has started on a cluster of summer homes in the vicinity of the proposed route, thus threatening to force relocation of the road or purchase of the homes. "The

Young Harris Sets Weekend For Parents

The beautiful North Georgia mountains will be dressed in full autumn color to greet the parents of Young Harris College students when they visit the campus Oct. 25 and 26.

A full and interesting program is planned as the day gets under way with a coffee at 9:30 Saturday morning in Appleby Center. Campus organizations will sponsor various programs which should be of interest to the parents.

There will be an art exhibit in the Clegg Building, the Young Harris College Ensemble will entertain, and "Under Milkwood" will be presented by the Young Harris Speech and Theatre Department. The day will be culminated with a faculty reception for parents and students.

On Sunday a special church service for parents and students is scheduled at Sharp Memorial United Methodist Church, on the Young Harris College campus. All parents and friends of the college are invited.

Young Harris Concert Set

Edwin Ayers, of Atlanta, will present a program Saturday night Oct. 25 in Clegg Auditorium at Young Harris College.

Following his stay at Young Harris, Ayers attended Florida State University where he received a full scholarship to study voice with Eugene Talley-Schmidt, internationally-known performer and teacher.

The program will consist of German, French, Italian and English repertoire as well as folk songs, which Ayers will sing accompanying himself. The first part of this program will be presented by the Young Harris College Ensemble. The public is invited to attend, and the program will begin at 7 p.m.
