Andrews-Murphy airport now has a 4300-foot runway and a complete lighting system—including rotating beacon and three obstruction beacons on nearby mountaintops—making this the largest and most up-to-date N. C. airfield west of Asheville. It can accommodate craft such as the Executive Model Lear Jet, shown above. Begun in June 1968, work was completed last month. Photos by Mary Mason

Carpet in a supermarket? That's right! Above photo shows first aisle installation in Franklin's Food Palace by Carolina Carpet Co. of E. T. Barwick's indoor-outdoor facia Pollypoint carpet in a rich orangewood shade. Proprietors Clarence (Shorty) and Ray Mason plan to carpet entire market, citing the advantages of cleanliness, quiet and safety as well as color. Employee Barbara Sutton poses as customer in photo. Bachelors' End—Of Season

At the end of a successful season—climaxed by a lawn buffet picnic at Helen Miller's for the Sunday Sketchers—the bachelors of Bachelors' End, Hod and Jeff Clark, set out for the Florida winter, loaded not only with wordly goods but with new plans for next season in Franklin.

ROCKHOUND

Jasper is the opaque form of chalcedony. Although the most common color is red, it occurs in many different shades and colors. As in agate, there is moss jasper and plume jasper, as well as specimens that are partly translucent and partly opaque. The term "jasper-agate" applies here.

Bloodstone is a dark green jasper with small bright red spots. Early Christian legend attributes these spots to drops of blood from Jesus on the way to the crucifixion.
