INVESTIGATE METHOD USED TO GET EVIDENCE

Judge in Charging Grand Jury Referred to "Certain Detectives" As "An Obstruction to Administration of Justice."

Atlanta, Ga., May 18.—Inquiry into methods used in obtaining evidence in connection with the extraordinary motion for a new trial for Leo M. Frank was directed here today by Superior Judge Benjamin H. Hill in instructing the Fulton county grand jury.

The course followed by "certain detectives" in the case of the factory superintendent, who is under sentence of death for the murder of Mary Phagan, the 14-year-old factory girl, were severely criticized by Judge Hill. He characterized the work of these "famous sleuths" as "an obstruction to the administration of justice."

"I doubt the wisdom of allowing detectives from another State, whether they be famous or infamous to come here and criticize our officers and our courts. We have no room here for such men—men who come posing as seeking the truth when they are only seeking notoriety and money," said the judge.

The court told the grand jury that various witnesses in the case had repudiated the testimony given by them at the trial of Frank and that some later had made counter-reputations. Investigation into the charges of bribery and fraud that were made in connection with these statements was asked.

The hearing on the motion to set aside the Frank verdict today was postponed by Judge Hill until Saturday. The postponement was granted upon request of attorneys on both sides. The motion is based upon the claim that Frank's constitutional rights were violated in that he was not present in court when the verdict was returned.

THE NEWSPAPER FIELD.

(Wilmington Star).

Referring to several newspaper changes and some suspensions in North Carolina within the past few weeks, the Reidsville Review is moved to observe:

"What's ailing the newspapers of the State? A few days ago we noted the suspension of Webster's Weekly. Last week the State Journal did likewise. The Charlotte Daily Chronicle has given up the ghost, having been absorbed by The News. The average newspaper does not have smooth sailing by a jug full."

Referring to what The Review says the Winston-Salem Sentinel adds:

"Few people realize what it costs to conduct a newspaper! With many of them it is a constantly losing proposition and the only wonder is that more of them do not have to suspend publication. The fact that they do not is a tribute to the financial ability of their proprietors and the loyal support of their friends."

All the papers which have suspended, or been absorbed by other papers were meritorious publications, but as business enterprises they failed to meet with the support that would warrant their continuance.

Now and then some enterprising persons think the field isn't covered and the demand is not fully met, so they invest in a plant and launch a paper without having carefully considered the consequences to themselves or to other publishers in the same locality. Either, or the other publishers, sooner or later, have to retire from an overcrowded field, and generally it is the new venture that fails to find a foothold that warrants all the efforts and expense that a newspaper, either weekly or daily, entails. Generally, experienced publishers carefully look over the field and stay out of it, while others, with more nerve than experience, think the water is fine and so come on in.

In the first place, people should not start a paper unless there is a well-defined demand for it in a field that can be counted upon to stand up to the demand. The desire to start a paper and create the demand for it will meet with disaster, for few newspaper men ever get out half as good a paper as they imagined they could run, and no publishers are getting out such a paper as they would like to publish. They have to hold in their horns and do the best they can with the support they get or can get by hard work and lots of expense.

A community really does itself harm when it tries to support more papers than it is able to sustain. One good paper in a town does it more good than two or three papers poorly supported.

REVIVAL SERVICES

The opening services of the Revival now being held in St. Paul M. E. church were unusually well attended and interesting. Last night a comfortably filled church welcomed Mr. McLarty at his first service. The hearers were well rewarded. His sermon was on Prayer, which he found to be the necessary and precious corollary of the Fatherhood of God. His discussion of the subject was clear, concise, and ornate, spiritual and deeply earnest. The response to his call for a Covenant of Prayer was instant and almost universal.

At the morning service, at 9:30 this morning, he spoke on The Refreshing from the Presence of the Lord. Again he met every expectation of the hearers and filled them with deep emotion. At the close of the sermon the altar was crowded with those who prayed for such a refreshing. Already a deep feeling is manifest throughout the congregation and there seems no doubt that our city is at the beginning of a real revival.

Mr. Milam is not only an excellent singer but a master of congregational singing and it is evident that one of the best things in the meeting will be the singing of the songs of Zion. Sufficient note books are provided and all who love to sing are urged to come and take part. Miss Virginia Kendall is presiding at the piano.

Services are being conducted each morning at 9:30 and each night at 8 o'clock. In addition the pastor requests that all Christians, wherever they may be, shall engage in a short season of prayer at the sound of the noon bell.

Willingness of Mexican Dictator Comes Too Late

SAYS CONSTITUTIONAL LEADERS

Will Be in Their Power Within Thirty Days—American Commissioners Leave For the Mediation Conference.

Washington, May 18.—President Wilson today told the American commissioners who leave tomorrow for the mediation conference at Niagara Falls, Ont., Canada, that the United States government regards the settlement of the Mexican problem in a definite form as a pre-requisite to the withdrawal of the American forces from Vera Cruz.

The President gave the American commissioners—Justice Lamar, of the Supreme Court of the United States; Frederick W. Lehmann, former solicitor general, and diplomatic secretary H. Percival Dodge no specific instructions. He told them to place themselves in a receptive mood and await proposals from the three South American ministers.

But at the same time he outlined to his representatives that peace in Mexico seemed to him to be conditioned on the elimination and the establishment in its place of strong provisional government which would conduct an election giving fair treatment to all factions and parties, and guarantee, moreover, a solution of the agrarian problem and other internal difficulties which have bred revolution in the Southern republic during the last three years.

The President wishes the Mexican question settled on comprehensive lines that will take into account the economic principles for which Zapata in the South, as well as Carranza in the north, have been fighting, and at the same time will conserve the rightful interests of the people in the territory now controlled by the Huerta government.

During the day a dispatch came to one of the foreign diplomats here from a diplomatic source in Mexico City stating that General Huerta was ready to resign and would permit his representatives at the mediation conference to eliminate him, if it should become absolutely necessary. Intimations that have come from the three Huerta delegates since their visit to this country showed that they had realized Huerta's elimination was regarded as essential to a settlement, and knew from the outset that unless they came prepared to deal with this phase of the problem their efforts would be fruitless.

The Huerta delegates, too, it is learned from persons who have talked with them, understand thoroughly that the scope of mediation now comprises the entire Mexican problem.

They are said to be ready to recommend Huerta's retirement, but only on the condition that definite understanding is reached on the kind of government that is to follow.

The military situation in Mexico however, is giving the Washington government some concern in the meantime and while confidence that mediation will be successful runs high there are those in the cabinet and the administration generally who are apprehensive lest a sudden and unexpected turn of events may affect the entire status of the negotiations. Some sporadic outbreak among Huerta's troops, irresponsible hostilities against the American forces or complications at Tampico where the Constitutionalists are in control it is realized, may at any moment alter the whole situation.
