SENATE SPENT DAY IN TOLLS DEBATE

All Efforts to Reach a Vote
Frustrated

WILL CONTINUE TODAY

Senator Simmons Presents the Simons-Norris Amendment Which Is Sharply Criticized by Senator Sutherland.

Washington, June 8.—Debate in opposition to the Panama Canal tolls exemption repeal occupied all of today in the Senate and frustrated efforts to reach a vote on the repeal bill. Senators Poindexter, Martin and Smith of Michigan, spoke during the day and Senator Smith will continue tomorrow.

Lines were drawn for the final disposition of the measure, however, and parliamentary preliminaries were completed. Senator Simmons presented to the Senate as a substitute for the committee amendment to the repeal bill, the compromise amendment agreed upon by himself and Senator Norris, of Nebraska. This amendment declares that the passage of the bill shall not be construed as a relinquishment of "any right the United States may have under the Hay-Pauncofote treaty, or otherwise."

Senator Sutherland criticized the Norris-Simmons amendment and proposed the following: "Provided that nothing herein shall be considered as denying or abridging the right of the United States to discriminate in favor of the ships of commerce of its citizens in respect of the conditions or charges of traffic which may be imposed for the use of the Panama Canal, but on the contrary such right is hereby reasserted."

Administration leaders declared tonight that they expect to reach a vote on the Norris-Simmons amendment by tomorrow afternoon. Senator Poindexter told the Senate that Great Britain was absolutely without ground on which to base a claim to consideration in the control of the canal. He asserted that the treaties between the United States and Great Britain referred to the proposed Nicaraguan route and did not affect the Panama route.

Free tolls from both coastwise and ocean-going American ships were urged by Senator Martine, of New Jersey. He said:

"However honest the President may be, he may err, and I believe that in this instance he has committed a most grievous error."

The Democratic administration was taken severely to task for its foreign policy by Senator Smith, who declared the President has not the far-sightedness of his predecessors.

"I wish I could give my full impression as to what drove the President to that desperate position," he said, referring to the demand for repeal of tolls exemption. "I think he was moved to this measure by a sudden situation in Mexico and as a result of a visit of officers of a Japanese battleship to Huerta at Mexico."

ONLY ONE MASTER FOR RAILROADS

Power of the Interstate Commerce Commission Upheld

BY THE SUPREME COURT

Federal Body Has Right to Interfere With State Rates When They Conflict With Inter-State Commerce.

Washington, June 8.—A long step toward placing railroads under "one master instead of many" was taken today by the United States Supreme Court in upholding the power of the Interstate Commerce Commission to strike down State rates that discriminate against inter-State commerce. In substance, the court said that the Minnesota and other recent State rate cases in which the railroads lost might have been decided otherwise had the roads gone to the commission for relief instead of the courts.

The decision was announced by Justice Hughes, Justices Pitney and Lurton dissenting. The case arose out of complaints by Shreveport, La., merchants that the Texas railroad commission had shut them out of all Texas business by compelling the railroads to reduce Texas State rates far below what the Interstate Commerce Commission allowed the railroad running from Shreveport to Texas cities to charge.

The court first decided that Congress had power to control inter-State charges over an inter-State carrier to the extent necessary to prevent injurious discriminations against inter-State traffic, and then held that Congress had conferred this power upon the Interstate Commerce Commission.

BILL IS BLOCKED NEW COMPLICATION IN ANTI-TRUST LEGISLATION

MEANS SEVERAL WEEKS

State Judiciary Committee Decides to Take Up Clayton Anti-Trust Measure—Then Adjourns Until Next Week.

Washington, June 8.—A new complication in the way of early action on anti-trust legislation in the Senate appeared today when the Judiciary committee decided to take up the Clayton anti-trust bill for consideration. The committee has not considered many subjects dealt with in this bill, such as interlocking directorates and holding companies, and with a wide divergence of opinion as to the manner in which their prohibition should be attempted, several weeks probably will pass before a report can be made to the Senate.

The committee adjourned to meet again in a week, when it is expected to decide the question of public hearings on the bill.

The Clayton bill, as it passed the House, contains the provision specifically exempting labor and other organizations from anti-trust laws, and this probably will lead to lengthy discussion in committee. Senator Kern, leader of the majority, said today that the Senate would legislate on this line in some form.

While the Judiciary committee is considering the Clayton bill, the Interstate Commerce commission also will continue its analysis of many of the subjects covered in that measure. Chairman Newlands announced that the decision of the Judiciary committee would not influence his committee and that he intended to go ahead as if another committee had not entered the anti-trust legislation field.

"Mr. Newlands this week intends to lay before the Senate the Federal trade commission bill, approved by his committee and virtually identical with the measure passed by the House.

There were more evidences today of opposition in the commerce committee to the trade commission bill. Senator Lippitt, who opposed the motion to report it last week, issued a statement vigorously criticizing its provisions. He said the bill "is not designed to add business in any way, and has no constructive powers at all," that "to discover the one guilty person, it puts the 999 innocent ones under an intolerable suspicion and under justifiable trouble and expense," and that it would "cost the 150,000,000 business concerns it affects $20,000,000 annually to respond to its demands."
