TAFT DECLARES NATION LOOKING TO NEW YORK

Hopes Empire State Constitutional Committee "Will Show the Way"

HE WARNS AGAINST HERESIES

Former President Discusses Two Subjects to be Considered, Governmental Organization and Guarantees of Individual Rights.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 27.—William H. Taft, speaking before the New York State Bar Association's annual meeting here last night, said there was wide interest throughout the country in the coming New York Constitutional Convention, an interest growing out of the hope that the Empire State would show the way.

"We have just been through a decade in which the most radical and dangerous changes of fundamental law have been proposed," he said. "I don't propose to discuss the utter lack of wisdom in destroying our most valuable representative system by the initiative and referendum, or taking away courage, independence and opportunity for wise planning by our executive officers through a system of popular recall or of the suggestion of recall of judges and judicial decisions, because it is quite clear from the high character of the delegates to your convention that of such heresies short shrift will be made should they show their heads."

Mr. Taft said the enactment of what should be only statutory provisions in some State Constitutions has served to deprive them of sanctity as fundamental law, and has greatly stimulated their constant change.

"If it were not for the bulwark of the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution, I don't know what would happen to such States as Arizona, California and such States as seem to be 'fad-ridden,'" he said.

Mr. Taft then took up the two subjects to come before the New York Constitutional Convention—governmental organization and guarantees of individual rights.

"Your present governmental structure in the State of New York," he said, "does not concentrate power or fix responsibility for the financial welfare of the State."

"It seems to me as clear as anything can be, a system by which a Governor elected by the people shall have power to appoint the heads of all executive bureaus in the State is likely to result, first in the selection of able men for the subordinate offices and men more expert in discharging their duties, being under the control of the Governor, are likely to be run better as part of a united machine."

He also recommended the appointment of judges by the Governor with the consent of the Legislature.

Taking up the question of individual rights, Mr. Taft referred to the first amendment to the Federal Constitution, which forbids the abridgment of the freedom of the press. This restriction, he said, ought not to prevent a Legislature from enacting suitable legislation giving the courts power to restrain the publication of the testimony of witnesses and accounts of the prosecution calculated to produce public belief in the guilt of an accused person before his trial.

OUR MILITARY GUESTS

A Fine Delegation of Cultured State Guard Officers in Conference Here.

As already heralded in the Argus for some days, the North Carolina National Guard Association will convene in annual conference in this city this afternoon. The first session was to have been held here this morning, but owing to the failure of many of the visitors to make scheduled connections it was deemed expedient not to convene the Association until this afternoon, when the first session will be held at 2:30 o'clock in the spacious Armory of Co. E, in the Edgerton Building, where the several formal addresses incident to the opening of the conference will be made, and where a social function, to be held jointly by the local officers of the National Guard and the Goldsboro Chapter of the Committee will be held this evening.

This is the "leader" that the Argus has already indicated would be used at the Elks Club, in which we were a part of the Elks Club, but we were not able to get there in time to attend the meeting. The Elks Club, however, has arranged to have a party at 8:30 p. m. and will be held at the Elks Club, in which we were a part of the Elks Club, but we were not able to get there in time to attend the meeting.

The deliberations of the Association will continue through tomorrow, concluding tomorrow evening. The following officers are in attendance at today's session:
Colonel—Geo. L. Peterson.
Major—York Coleman.
Captain—W. H. Phillips.

TRIUMPH OF TELEPHONE

A GREAT RECORD ESTABLISHED YESTERDAY FOR LONG DISTANCE TALK.

Indeed, we live in an age of wonderful achievements—and are still adding to them.

The Southern Bell Telephone Company yesterday afternoon tried out long distance talks, in which President Wilson, in Washington, talked to the president of the Panama-San Francisco Exposition in San Francisco, and this morning the Argus was telephoned the following report: (Washington Story).

The President entered the room at 5:45 and immediately thereafter communication was established between Washington and San Francisco. President Moore of San Francisco Exposition was at the telephone at that end, the wire was working splendidly, the conversation being distinct as between Washington and Baltimore.

President Wilson in his conversation with President Moore of the Panama Exposition expressed his sincere congratulations to the management of the exposition and also to all who were connected with that great undertaking. He spoke about his forthcoming visit to the coast and said he hoped to give some time to the exposition proper. Mr. Moore in reply to the President's conversation stated that he was looking forward enthusiastically to the visit of the President and said "I think you will be well pleased with what we have done."

(Boston Story).

Thomas D. Lockwood in Boston, talked to Thomas A. Watson in San Francisco, recounting the early experiences with the telephone and expressing wonder at the latest achievement. Major Higginson of Boston extended greetings to San Francisco and Elmer J. Bliss president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce talked to W. M. Moore, president of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce. Fred J. McLeod, chairman of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission talked to a representative at the California Public Service Commission. Mayor Gurley had a word to say etc., following which telephone officials exchanged greetings.—1 p. m.

Immediately after the celebration Theo. N. Vail, president of the Bell system made this statement:

"At the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia the exhibit of the Bell system consisted of two telephones capable of talking from one part of a room to another. Fairly as the transmission speech then was it became at once the marvel of all the world, causing scientists as well as laymen to exclaim with wonder. Starting with these feeble instruments only the Bell company, by persistent study, incessant experimentation, and expenditure of immense sums of money created an entirely new art and inventing, developing, and perfecting, making improvements great and small and telephone transmitters, lines, cables, switch boards, and every other piece of apparatus and plant required for the transmission of speech.

"As the latest product of this unceasing organized effort there has been opened to the service of the public today a trans-continental telephone line 3,600 miles long, joining the Atlantic and Pacific and carrying the human voice instantly and distinctly between San Francisco and New York and Boston and Washington.

"This telephone line is part of the Bell System of twenty-one million miles of wire connecting nine million telephone stations located everywhere throughout the United States and giving to the American people telephone service unparalleled among the nations of the earth."

The remarkable talk between Dr. Bell in New York and Mr. Watson in San Francisco was as follows:

Dr. Bell (in New York)—"Hey! Hey! Mr. Watson are you there? Do you hear me?"

Mr. Watson (in San Francisco)—"Yes, Dr. Bell, I hear you perfectly. Do you hear me well?"

Bell—Yes, your voice is perfectly distinct. It is as clear as if you were here in New York, instead of being more than 3,600 miles away. Do you remember, Mr. Watson, that evening 38 years ago when we conversed through the telephone on a real line for the first time.

Watson—Yes, indeed, that line was two miles long running from Boston to Cambridge. You were overjoyed at the success of the experiment.

Bell—We are talking 3,400 miles as easily and clearly as we talked over two miles 38 years ago.

Watson—The telephone men have certainly done wonderful things with your invention since that first outdoor test. We must not forget that the

OUR BANKERS HOPEFUL

Situation in the South Is Favorable to Early Revival of Property—Let Us Have Faith.

Several leading State papers on Sunday carried a most interesting and encouraging interview with their local representative had with our well-posted townsman Mr. Jas. Kyle, cashier of the Peoples Bank, to which we gladly give space in our columns as follows:

James Kyle, a local banker, of this city, formerly of Wilmington, who has been looking carefully into commercial and industrial conditions in the southern states, was asked by your correspondent for a summary of the result of his inquiries.

"While business conditions in the southern states are not as favorable as we would like to have them," said Mr. Kyle, "I think the situation fully as favorable to an early revival of prosperity as that in any other part of the country. Throughout the south, the banking institutions are in sound condition, and, although their managers are generally pursuing careful and conservative policies, sound business enterprises are generally able to obtain all the credit needed. In the United States as a whole, and especially in the predominant industry, largely as a result of the decrease in the purchasing power of the farmers, retail trade in most southern communities is not very active. In those localities where cotton mill employes and other industrial workers are most numerous, there has, of course, been more or less falling off in retail business as a result of the industrial depression. As in all other sections, there is a tendency on the part of retail dealers in all lines to buy very conservatively and reduce their stocks of goods. This necessarily has the effect of curtailing the business of jobbers, who in turn are conservative in their purchases from manufacturers, and this, in turn, tends to accentuate the industrial depression.

"The question of how soon a revival may be expected to begin is one which no man can answer with certainty, for the reason that some of the reasons for the continuance of the business depression are psychological. This being true, one of the most important results to be brought about is the creation of a constructive sentiment based on faith in ourselves and in the future. The few weak spots in our banking system have been eliminated; the natural resources of our country have not been diminished, and the industry and enterprise of the American people are as great as ever before. Under these circumstances, before, as a result of the prolongation of existing conditions, economic complications arise, it is the duty of each one of us to look to the future, rather than to the past, and to contribute, to the best of his ability, to the bringing about of such a sound constructive sentiment as will substantially aid in a return to prosperity."

Bel—I want to switch in another telephone and talk to you through that. (Switches in the first telephone.) I am talking through an exact duplicate of the first telephone which was made in June 1875. Can you hear me? Watson—I hear it perfectly, though less distinct than the other, of course. (Now switching back to the standard transmitter.)

Bell—What wonderful progress has been made by the Bell system since then to enable our voices to be transmitted over a circuit of 6,800 miles without the least appearance of distortion or weakness.

Watson—Their work has been superb and also has the discipline of the organization that watches every inch of this long circuit to safeguard these feeble vibrations from the many things that might interfere with them.

BELL—ALL HONOR TO THE MEN WHO HAVE RENDERED THIS GREAT ACHIEVEMENT POSSIBLE. THAT HAVE BROUGHT ALL THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES WITHIN SOUND OF ONE-ANOTHER'S VOICES AND UNITED THEM NOW INTO ONE GREAT BROTHERHOOD.

Following the talk between Mr. Bell and Mr. Watson, Mr. Carty talked with Mr. Vail at Jekyll Island, Ga. Mr. Vail then talked to Mr. Bell in New York, exchanging congratulations and then the connection was established between Jekyll Island and San Francisco a distance of 4,900 miles and Mr. Vail in Jekyll Island talked to Mr. Watson in San Francisco, breaking all records for the long distance transmission of speech. Mayor Mitchell of New York, talked with Mayor Roth at San Francisco, and other distinguished men in New York talked with officials and dignitaries in San Francisco.

THE RAWEIS COMING

Presenting in Music, Song and Story a Most Unique and Fascinating Portrayal of Native Life in the South Sea Islands.

"Those Leafy isles upon the ocean thrown, Like studs of emerald o'er a silver zone."

New Zealand is the wonderland of the South Seas. It is the land of romance, poetry and sentiment. It amazes the visitor with its wealth of natural curiosities and the endless variety and grandeur of its scenery. It is the home of the Maori, the highest type of savage life inhabiting the islands of the Pacific; a people who have been wonderfully quick to forsake their aboriginal customs and superstitions and fit themselves for the highest walks of civilized life. The Rawei family are native Maoris, and are handsome specimens of their race. In their public exhibitions they wear the queer but picturesque costumes of the native islander. Mr. Rawei himself was born in the wilds of Northern New Zealand, among the most savage people, was adopted by an English lady of wealth when about twelve years old, given a thorough education, and enabled to graduate with high honors and the degree of Master of Arts from Christ Church University.

The presentation of "From Savagery to Culture" is so cleverly and artistically done and is so full of the interest of novelty and wonder, that it compels the utmost enthusiasm. It is captivating to the last degree, full of delightful surprises that follow one another in bewildering procession, charming the eye and ear, provoking outbursts of laughter, melting to tears, enlisting the sympathies completely. You are held under a spell of fascination by the weird ballads, the love songs, the canoe choruses, the war chants and incantations, the quaint descriptions of the native customs and the numerous beautiful pictures of the marvelous island scenery.

Mr. Rawei, whose English is remarkably correct, has an unusual charm of style, and possesses such a fund of humorous and pathetic anecdotes that when his audience is not holding its breath with excited interest, it is generally in a roar of laughter or bathed in silent tears. His wife, Hine Taimoa, has a rich contralto voice, and knows how to use it. In fact, all these natives are accomplished singers. The blending of the voices in the minor ballads and chants is one of the most touching and pleasing items of the entertainment.

This is the third attraction of Goldsboro's Chautauqua course, and will be with us on the evening of February 1st.
