

Let's Simplify Housekeeping Says State College Specialist

Are you one of the many homemakers who says to herself, "I just wish I had more time to do all the things I want to do and need to do."? Unfortunately you can't add to, or take away from the 24 hours in each day, but you can determine how your time can be spent most efficiently, says Mamie Whismant, State College Extension Specialist in home management.

Housekeeping jobs may be taking more of your time than should be necessary, says Mamie Whismant. The stress of rushing from one job to another, day after day, usually results in an exhausted, nervous feeling at the end of each day. Such tension can impair your health and make it impossible for you to give your best physically or socially to your family.

You've probably been hearing a great deal about work simplification recently. Just what does this mean? Actually, it means learning to do the jobs you do frequently in the quickest, easiest ways, combining jobs, or perhaps even omitting some. This work simplification is very important if you want to save time and energy, asserts Miss Whismant.

Let's look at food preparation. Think of the many different jobs you do three times a day in preparing the family meals. How many meals do you prepare each year?—the figure assumes pretty startling proportions. Here you can begin to see how much it would mean to save a few steps, stoops, reaches, and minutes on each job. It will add up to a lot of time and energy saved in a year.

Perhaps one reason so many homemakers dread housekeeping jobs is that they are still doing them the hard way, says Miss Whismant. They haven't learned the quickest, easiest ways, using the tools, equipment and supplies best suited to each particular job. Look at your own methods for a moment. Are you doing jobs that other members of the family could and should do?

By LITTLE HULL

THIS is Hullabaloo's vaudeictory. Now that we are about to change an Administration which has done us such great harm, there won't be much for this writer to holler about except the Bolsheviks, and every one has—at long last—taken up the hue and cry in that quarter.

What tremendous world changes have occurred since this column first appeared in John W. Perry's Reading (Pa.) Times. We have had a world war to the detriment of everyone except the Red leaders. We have, through stupidity—or worse, assisted in the enslavement of hundreds of millions of once free human beings. We have placed a financial burden of over two hundred thousand millions of dollars debt upon ourselves and our descendants. We could have rebuilt a free and happy world—except for Russia—but now a dark and dangerous cloud hangs over it, and there is no real joy in the heart of anyone who is intelligent enough to grasp the terrible danger which we face—danger of actually losing our lives as have so many millions in Russia, China and the captive nations.

This writer's great hope and prayer is that our new government will throw away the silk gloves, root out all the filthy traitors in government and elsewhere, and send them where they can never break loose to start the murder of their fellow citizens, which their creed advocates.

He hopes our new leaders will realize—as does the military—that the Spanish Peninsula is the most vital spot in European defense until such time as the free nations are able to match the slave nations in ground and air strength.

Pray God that Whittaker Chambers was wrong when he said to his wife as he was turning his back on Communism—"You know, we are leaving the winning world for the losing world."
