

Jones County 4-H'er Pat Foy's Steer Champ of Fat Stock Show

In the two pictures here Patricia Foy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Foy of Trenton, is seen last week with the Aberdeen-Angus steer with which she won the Grand Championship of the annual Coastal Plain Fat Stock Show, and the beautiful awards she received; the larger presented by the Frosty Morn Packing Company and the other by the Aberdeen-Angus Association. The steer, which graded prime, was a born and bred Jones County steer, coming from Dr. Paul Whitaker's Pocahontas Farm in the Dover section of

Jones County, and the steer was a full brother to the grand champion of the 1954 show. The champion steer belonging to Miss Foy was purchased at the sale following the show by the Frosty Morn Packing Company for $1 cents a pound. (Polaroid photos in a minute by Jack Rider.)

Jones Merchant Beaten, Robbed Tuesday Night

This is Leslie White, Jones County farmer and merchant, as he appeared Wednesday morning, 9 hours after he was brutally assaulted and robbed by an unknown assailant who escaped with about $600 in cash and $800 in checks. White suffered a compound fracture of the lower right leg, a mutilated index finger on his right hand and a badly damaged left eye, plus many other bruises and minor cuts about the head and body.

White said he had just closed his store in the Elm Grove community at about 12:15 and was walking to his home which is about 300 feet north of the store.

As he neared the car port of his home the unknown Negro assailant spoke, before White saw him, saying, "Stick 'em up and give me your money."

White says at first he didn't think it was really a stick up and then the man came into view nervously waving a small gun. White said he threw an account book at the thief and then the thief slammed him beside the head with what he believes to have been a flashlight.

Falling to the ground, White's leg was broken. White says he never lost consciousness. About $200 in currency and coin in a

Raise Tax Rate as Some Fear

A Jones County official says that some taxpayers in the county have gotten the wrong impression about recent legislation offered specifically for Jones County by Representative John M. Hargett.

The particular bills referred to give the county board of commissioners authority to levy up to 15 cents on the hundred dollar valuation for support of the home agent and farm agent offices, and the other permits a 10 cent levy for support of forest fire controls in the county.

The present limits for those two operations are 10 cents for the farm and home agents offices and five cents for the forestry work. Presuming that the commissioners did see fit to use the entire amount only a 10 cent boost would be possible.

In addition to those two bills another eliminates a five cents levy for the office of county attorney.

The official pointed out that in view of that the net possible tax increase in view of all special Jones legislation would be five cents, and there is no indication at this point as to whether or not the commissioners will use the power to make such increases.

The official also pointed out that both of these permissive pieces of legislation were requested by large groups of people in the county who felt the need for additional support for the extension offices and for forestry work.

Jones County Taxpayers Forgot Their Flivvers at Listing Time

Jones County Tax Collector Zelle Pollock says her office has mailed out 700 letters to residents of Jones County who "forgot" to list their cars and trucks during the annual tax listing. Many of these letters went to people who possibly lived in another county, Miss Pollock still felt that a great many dollars would be added to the overall personal property listings in the county.

The tax collector's office had who had forgotten to list more than one vehicle, Miss Pollock pointed out.

Admitting that the master list from the State Department of Motor Vehicles included some people with a Jones County address who possibly lived in another county, Miss Pollock still felt that a great many dollars would be added to the overall personal property listings in the county, it will be profitable to the county.

Crimes of Perversion Dominate Lenoir Court Docket Next Week

Solicitor Walter Britt has scheduled 29 persons for trial during the April 25th term of Lenoir County's Superior Court and four of that number are facing charges involving various kinds of sexual perversion.

Ben E. Manning, Harry Lee Jones and John H. Sutton all face charges of committing a crime against nature.

Perhaps the most lengthy docketing in the history of the court was recorded against Nurse Ruby Ipock of New Bern who faces 55 separate charges of narcotics law violations.

Traffic violations account for five of the 29 indictments to be aired and in those Alfred P. Terterton, Morris Grant and Lucille Wiggins are charged with speeding. Curtis R. Lanier is booked for drunken driving and Linster James Hoffman is charged with reckless driving.

Sim Horn is charged with first degree burglary, Hardy J. Pearson with assault by pointing a gun. Lavender Watkins and Harold Whitley with public drunkenness, William Darden with receiving stolen property, Michael J. bag were taken and while the thief was picking the bag up White said he slipped his pocket book with about $400 in cash and $800 in checks out and threw it up under a car.

The thief returned, however, and got the money from under the car.

During the assault, White called to his wife who was inside. Mrs. White ran out and tried to pull the thief off her husband and suffered the loss of a finger tip and a finger nail by the lunging, biting thief. She also suffered a spinal injury when she was knocked to the ground in the brutal and premeditated attack.

White says all he can say about the man is that it was a Negro, about six feet tall and he believes that he was wearing overalls with a bib. Lenoir and Jones County officers and Highway Patrolmen obtained a bloodhound and tracked the assailant for a short distance but lost the trail at a nearby road where it appeared he completed his escape in some vehicle.
