Jones Central Home Ec Girls Proud of 'Kitchens'

This is one of four "kitchens" in the Jones Central High School Home Economics Department.

There is only one unusual thing about it. It has standard equipment, is well kept like most "kitchens" in classrooms and is the pride and joy of its users, some 137 students under the direction of Home Ec Teacher Mrs. Alma Phillips.

The unusual aspect is that this kitchen and the three others were purchased by the students themselves.

When the school was opened the Home Ec Department had tables and chairs but none of the tools for learning the best way to a man's heart. So under the direction of Mrs. Phillips and with the approval of School Superintendent W. B. Moore and School Principal R. M. Durham they set about doing something about it.

Dozens of different projects were engaged upon. Cakes were baked, sandwiches were made, parties were catered to and now over $3,000 worth of "tools" are in use. One "gas kitchen" and three "electric kitchens", one garbage disposal unit, one electric refrigerator and one electric water heater comprise the set up. Mrs. Phillips and "her girls" are understandably proud of their kitchen and their contribution to future Home Ec students who now have advantage of the more modern kitchen equipment to learn the art of fine and economical cooking.

District Health Officer Dr. R. J. Jones has asked the cooperation of every dog owner in Jones and Lenoir counties in the series of rabies vaccination clinics which will be held in both counties beginning next Monday.

For the first time in eight years, Dr. Jones reminds, those who local people under treatment for this dreaded disease after exposure to a two-month old puppy which was found to be suffering from hydrophobia. In Kingston 23 persons are having to undergo long and painful immunization. Dr. Jones reminds that there is NO CURE for once it sets in. The Pasteur treatment will protect an exposed person from developing the disease but once the disease begins the only possible result is a horrible and quick death.

Dr. Jones says he does not wish to terrify the people of these two counties but he feels it is his duty to constantly remind them of the great dangers of this disease to humans as well as to all types of livestock. A rabid dog or cat can cause the death of thousands of dollars worth of livestock in a very short while, Dr. Jones points out.

The North Carolina law expressly says that every dog over four months of age must be vaccinated against rabies. Everyone knows that this law has never been enforced and very largely because of the failure of the people to cooperate.

The Jones County clinics will be held next week, beginning Tuesday morning and to be held at the following times and places:

- 9:30 a. m. Wayne Hester's Store.
- 10 a. m. Leslie White's Store.
- 10:30 a. m. Jasper Hill's home on the Copeland Farm.

Gents.

Elizabeth S. Walker, assistant librarian at East Carolina, will act as faculty advisor to the marshals, a position which she has held for several years.

Selected as marshals for 1956-1957 are Betty Jo Butts, Angier; Janet Hill and Janet Fletcher, Elizabeth City; Jacqueline and Geraldine McDaniel, Fayetteville; Rachael Lang and Jonquelya Simpson, Greenville; Katherine Dismuke, Burlington; Mattie Forbes, Farmville; Ann C. Hughes, Pollocksville; Suzanne Jenkins, Rockingham; Dorothy Laughinghouse, Dunn; Paige Litley, Gatesville; Elaine Smith, Deep Run; Peggy Love Spruill, Merritt; and Ann Tucker, Monroe. Alternates are Dorothy Branch, Greenville, and Marie Vines, Aringha, Va.

Vann Reese Bender, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vann Bender of Pollocksville, is, in all probability, the youngest Sunday School goer ever to receive a six month attendance pin for perfect Sunday School going.

The 7 1/2 month old young man began making his record while just six weeks old and he hasn't missed a Sunday since. Last Sunday other members of his Sunday School class to get the same pin.

Unusual Breaking - in Reported by Sheriff

One of the two Jones County arrests in the past week was a most unusual breaking and entering, that might have been classed as burglary without too great a stretch of the legal imagination.

According to Sheriff Brown Yates it was about like this.

Albert Garland Morris of Vanceboro was doing a little hitch-hiking on the highway near the north of Pollocksville, which was not unusual.

But as the night grew darker and colder Morris sought shelter and found it by pushing open the door of the Green Valley Filling Station. When the owner came down the Sunday morning he found Morris snoring away, sprawled on the floor.

No evidence of any stealing but some slight evidence of over-drinking were about the substance

Ann Hughes And Elaine Smith Named Marshals for 1956-'57

The Jones County Board of Eastern Carolina College will serve as college marshals for the 1956-1957 term. They were chosen by their fellow students at the college on the bases of academic standing, popularity, and attractive appearance.

The marshals serve as ushers at many programs at the college. During commencement exercises they lead the various sections of the academic procession and participate in other activities, centered around graduation of students.

The only other indictment of the past week was of Odell McDaniel of Pollocksville who was caught with "about two big drinks" of stump-hole whisky and, hence, faces a charge of violating the liquor laws.

Effort Being Made Get Stream Clearance Funds for Jones County

In a special meeting of the Jones County Board of Commissioners which was held last Wednesday the way was cleared and funds were voted so that every possible effort could be made to see that Jones County gets its share of federal funds which may be allocated in the near future to assist Eastern Carolina Counties with cleaning out hurricane clogged rivers and creeks.

John Yates, Jones County Supervisor for the Lower Neuse Soil Conservation District was asked and minimum survey funds were voted to survey all the major streams in Jones County.

Included in the survey will be the following streams and mileages to be surveyed on those streams: Trent River 40, White Oak River 20, Tuckahoe Creek 14, Beaver Creek 10, Mill Creek 8, Big Shinguaipin 4, Little Chinpuaipin 4, Muscle Shell Creek 8, Black Swamp 8, Cypress Creek 4, Mill River 6 and Joshua Creek 3.

Yates says the funds being sought have been approved in the House of Representatives but have not yet been approved in the Senate. Surveys to be made in each of the eligible counties in Eastern Carolina will be used for determining the division of the approximately five million dollars which is tentatively set up for this work.

Yates agreed that Jones County surely merits fullest consideration since the county and many of its citizens had just finished paying for the cleaning out of Trent River from Trenton to the Lenoir County line when Hurricane Hazel came along and dumped nearly as many trees and debris in the winding river as had been removed. Then the 1955 hurricanes added insult to the earlier injury.

These two photographs show the work planned for clearing the stream. The first picture shows the dam across the stream and the second picture shows the stream after the dam has been removed.

projects such as this are now underway in Jones County and although 100 per cent co-operation has been given by all landowners who should have taken part in these projects a majority are paying their money and their plans together in the hope that others may change their mind and enter into the drainage project which will make many thousands of acres of rich Jones County land even more productive.
