

SENATOR SAM ERVIN & SAYS &

With the world in turmoil, the peo- change during a period of sev ple of our country are focusing their attention on the Administration to see what steps will be taken.

CONGRESS As this is written, the general election results indicate that 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans were elected to the Senate on November 6. If that is the final figure, Democrats will control the Senate by the same margin as in the last congress.

Democrats won more easily in the House and have clinched control there. It means that Representatives Cooley, Barden, Durham, their energies. and Bonner will have highly important committee chairmanships, giving North Carolina important seniority.

TOPSY - TURVY

A number of things combined to produce an unusual situation with respect to the Presidency and Conwell at the local levels, and their dith beauty at the May event, strength was greatly increased in inroads with Mr. Eisenhower in and a situation in which there seems to be considerable consolation for both parties in the picture as a whole. For example, the President ran well ahead of his party as an individual, and local Democrats captured a lot of offices in Republican territory.

UNITY The important thing now is to put the welfare of our country first. That is my purpose, and I am confident that my Democratic colleagues will coperate with the President when they feel that his program is best for the country. He had that cooperation from Democrats in the past Congress, and I see no reason for a change.

All of us realize the gravity of the world situation. The sudden world crisis arose at a time when it probably caused a reat deal of people not to want to make a international stress. In any event the election is history. THANKS

I am deeply appreciative of the confidence the people of North Carolina again placed in me. Thank you everyone. No political office can be taken for granted. I worked day and night to get around North Carolina. It was a physical strain, but rewarding in so many aspects that one in political life seldom thinks of the physical demands. That is perhaps one reason why so many public figures overtax
