Mrs. Wilson Lowery was the adult leader present.

I'm willing to say this much. We can't devise a system of ethics, or art big enough to put a roof over all the world's crazy habits. Morality is a mighty intangible thing. The accepted moral in this neck of the woods might be a capital crime in the next forest. Here, for instance, instead of all our breast-beating about religious freedom it's illegal, and immoral, too, I presume for one to practice polygamy although his religion might permit, or even invoke such a misguided practice. But in another part of the world — in fact in many parts of the world it is perfectly proper to have as many wives as one can support and yet in those backward lands it is a hanging crime for a child to deny help to his parents. While here we have thousands of old folks dipping snuff on welfare checks while their children ride the road in Ford V-8's.

might be "Do Unto Others As You Would Have Them Do Unto You". A lot of folks would like nothing better than to censor this little ole newspaper. Every once in a while some sanctified sinner prays, a few public prayers and writes me an illiterate letter deploring the fact that we have been known to run whisky ads. So I ain't getting in the censor end of the trade. I might get caught in the same bear trap if we start setting it around the edges of all "corn-fields" because I like roasting ears myself.
