

Central Ruritan Seeks Potato Storage Facility

The Central Ruritan Club held its regular monthly meeting last Wednesday night in the cafeteria of Jones Central High School. Twenty-seven members were present. Those present enjoyed a delicious meal of stewed chicken, cole slaw, hot rolls and cake. Guests of the club were Ruritan Lt. Governor Gray Smith, Jesse Croom, H. T. Creech, and W. J. Adams.

Croom reminded the group of the District Ruritan meeting to be held at the Moss Hill school on November 18 and urged Central Ruritan Club members to be present. Bruce Foy, chairman of the Agricultural Committee, reported that representatives of the group had met and discussed possible sources of additional farm income.

Foy stated that he felt that a sweet potato storage facility in the county would be one of the best means of adding income. He further stated that this possibility had been explored and prospects for a potato storage house looked promising for another year.

The program was then turned over to John Pollock who introduced H. T. Creech, salesman for Morton Salt Company and W. J. Adams, field manager for the Morton Company. Creech and Adams presented a very interesting and informative program on the mineral and salt requirements of livestock.

Right-of-Way Suits In Lenoir County Superior Court

A two-week term of Lenoir County Superior Court has very largely been consumed with hearing litigation between the Carolina Power & Light Company and property owners in Neuse Township over easements for a 110,000-volt transmission line.

Since last Thursday the court has been concerned with four suits which are being heard together. These involve the lands of Misses Dorothy and Alice Jackson and Simon Jackson and a tract held jointly by Alice and Simon Jackson.

Originally the power company had offered the Jacksons $5,000 for the easement which extends for well over a mile in crossing the four tracts of land they own. Later a group of commissioners, Horace Taylor, Jesse Jackson and W. C. Boone, was appointed by the court to appraise the easement's damage to the Jackson's property and it placed a total price of $12,250. This included $7,500 to Simon, $1,500 to Simon and Alice, $1,250 to Alice and $2,000 to Dorothy.

In the action now before the court the Jacksons are asking a total of $105,000 for the four easements; $50,000 to Simon, $20,000 to Dorothy, $20,000 to Alice and $15,000 to Simon and Alice jointly.

Senator Ervin Reports:

WASHINGTON — Work is to start soon on removing the historic portico of the East front of the Capitol.

CAPITOL EXTENSION

Plans call for the extension work to be completed by October 1, 1960, in time for the Presidential inauguration in January, 1961.

The first work to be done is the stone-by-stone removal of the portico. These stones will be marked and set aside until a decision is made as to what disposition should be made of them. By next February, the entire portico will be removed, according to plan. Then work will commence on construction of the 32½-foot marble extension. The marble will be carved in exact duplication of the old standstones, ornaments and all.

BLOCKED ENTRANCE

One of the reasons I think this project is worthy of mentioning in this column is that it will block the front entrance, necessitating entrance to the Capitol by the Senate and House wings for the next two years. A fence will be constructed around the East front parking area, and those of you who plan to visit the Capitol will want to remember the change in parking and building entrance.

OPPOSED CHANGE

When the extension of the East front of the Capitol was being debated in the Senate, I did not support the change. The project will cost over $10 million. It has been highly controversial among architects. But the proponents of the change prevailed and now we are seeing the project begin. As a consequence the greatest change in the Capitol in a century will have been made. The last great change was the addition of the new Senate and House wings a century ago.
