Canned Foods Add Variety

To save time and labor, for convenient home storage, for good eating, for variety in meals, and for thrift—all these are reasons why American families buy canned foods.

Miss Virginia Wilson, nutrition specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says that in a survey conducted in North Carolina 84 per cent of the homemakers questioned indicated they used canned food because it was a time saver in preparing meals.

It pays to know the different can sizes and about how many servings each contains. With this information you can fit purchases to family needs. The only sure way to know how many servings any size can contains is to read the label. The label gives can size, volume, grade, and style of contents.
