Make Plans Now To Handle Weeds

Are your weed control tools and machines ready to go? Have you made your final plans on how to handle weeds on land this summer? Old standing tools like cultivators and hoes should be checked now before you get busy with other jobs. Now is the time to do this job just as surely as there is a right time to cultivate and hoe for effective weed control and to top-dress for the high yield. Newer tools like sprayers for applying weed chemicals need to be checked, too. Applying chemical weed killers at the right time is even more important than getting some cultivating done at the right time. A sprayer which has become fouled with dust and rust won't be very serviceable at spraying time. Take time now to clean it up. Be sure to replace worn nozzles and valves, rotted hose and badly rusted tank and boom. Doing these jobs now will help you to "wage war on weeds" this year.
