

GARDEN TIME
M. E. Gardner

This is a good season for getting the pruning chores behind you. Practically all trees and shrubs may be pruned now — except the early blooming shrubs, which should not be pruned until after they flower next spring.

Prune with a purpose rather than butcher with a vengeance. Muscadine, ("Scuppernon") grapes pruned now will not bleed as badly as if pruned rather heavily if they have been neglected.

Perhaps some evergreen shrubs have gotten unruly and need attention — ligustrum, Burfordi hollies and others. If they have been neglected, don't try to correct all at once but rather gradually over a year or two. If you ever let pyracantha get out of hand you are in trouble unless it has plenty of room and needs little or no pruning. Keep these plants shaped to suit your notion as they grow.

Someone asked the other day about the best time to prune crepe myrtles. Now, if they need it. Usually this plant is pruned very little.

This is planting time, too, for all trees and shrubs. Fruit trees and grape vines will have naked roots, so don't let them dry out before planting.

For these types, dig a hole plenty large enough to prevent crowding of the roots, deep enough so that the plant is set slightly deeper than it stood in the nursery row, and wide enough for your feet.

When digging separate top and sub-soil so that the top soil can be placed around the roots, cover roots thoroughly and shake tree gently up and down to settle the soil. Continue this operation until within about four inches of the top of the hole, then throw in loose soil.

Equal volume of peat mixed with the top soil is a good practice.

Shrubs that are balled and burlapped can be planted any time during the year, as can nursery stock in cans.

Be sure not to work soil when it is wet. If plants are received when soil is wet or frozen, put them in a protected place and cover the roots or ball with old sawdust.

A reminder, Azaleas and camellias will not tolerate deep planting. For these plants, leave the top of the ball of dirt around the roots even with the soil surface. Use equal volumes of peat and soil to fill the hole and mulch with pine straw.
