Wayne Jarman Running Against Sheriff Yates; One More For Clerk?

During the past week only one additional candidate has filed for major office with Jones County Election Board Chairman W. F. Hill, and he was Wayne Jarman of Trenton, former coroner, who decided to contest with Sheriff Brown Yates for the job of the county's chief law enforcement officer.

Jarman has never run in a really hard fought race before since in his election as coroner he was either unopposed or had only token opposition.

Yates is completing his second full 4-year term as sheriff, having been elected to the post first in 1954 after the death of Sheriff Jeter Taylor.

Woman Candidate?

There are rumors around the county that Macy Mallard may toss her bonnet into the race for clerk of superior court.

Miss Mallard, one of the county's best known citizens, is presently secretary to the farm and home agents. She said last week that she had not made a final decision on this matter, but would do so within a few days.

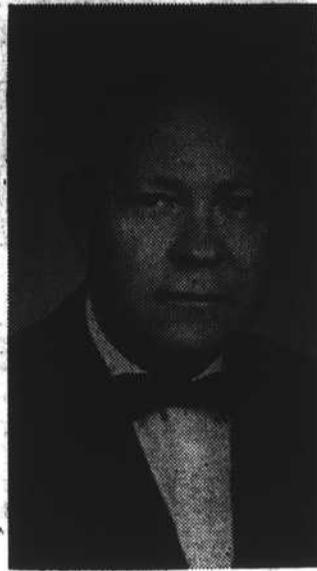

Candidates already in the clerk race include two former Trenton mayors, William Henry Hammond and George Nick Noble and Carl Flowers Jr.

There is also a pretty strong possibility that before the deadline comes at Noon, Friday, April 13th there will be more names added to the list of candidates for the county board of commissioners.

Guest speaker for the week will be the Rev. H. G. Quigley of the Richlands Circuit.

Monday the Jones County Board of Commissioners agreed to defer action until May 7th on requests before them on two important matters.

One is the request from the county board of education for a school bond election in the amount of $100,000 and the other is a request from the Tracy Swamp Watershed for county funds to set up the district and put it into operation.

Monday the Lenoir County Board of Commissioners voted $1870 as its part of the three-county project.

Craven County has also been asked to allocated the same amount of money and Jones County's share of the preliminary money is $720.

All the funds put up in advance by the county treasuries will be refunded to the counties later when the property owners in the district payoff the cost of the drainage project.

The school board's request is predicted upon what it feels to be a pressing need for additional classroom space in a number of the county's schools, as well as renovations and repairs to some of the existing space.

Commissioners File Claim in Clerk Loss

Divorce Action

Suit for divorce on grounds of two-year separation was filed in Jones County Superior Court this week by Mary H. Green, who is seeking the divorce from William Ethea Green. The complaint alleges that the couple was married August 25, 1950 and separated in March of 1953 and that they have one 10 year-old child now in the custody of Mrs. Green.

Don Brock Named Jones Chairman for Historical Association

Donald P. Brock of Trenton has been named Jones County membership chairman of the Roanoke Island Historical Association, it was announced this week by Mrs. Fred W. Morrison of Washington, D. C., Chairman of the association's board of directors.

As one of the state-wide "committee of 100," Brock will join with other county chairmen this spring in actively promoting membership in the historical association. Mrs. Sam J. Ervin, Jr. of Washington, D. C., is state membership chairman.

Brock reports that association members and staff are now busy with ambitious plans for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of The Lost Colony, Paul Green's outdoor symphonic drama presented each summer since 1937 at Manteo on Roanoke Island.

It was also reported that the association is working closely with Governor Sanford's commission for the commemoration of the 375th anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare, first child born of English parents in America.

Anticipating a highly successful anniversary season for The Lost Colony, Brock said, "We are happy over the outlook for the 1962 season. The new theatre under construction in the Fort Raleigh National Historic Site suffered no damage in the recent storm that struck the Outer Banks, and the drama will open as scheduled."

Monday the Jones County Board of Commissioners passed a resolution calling on the bonding company for the loss in last December's burglary of Court Clerk Murray Whitaker's office.

The board also approved payment of a bill from Accountant Earl Franck for $3,101.86 for the 10-year audit of the clerk's office records which was made after the robbery. The audit covered the period from November 1, 1951, to December 14, 1961.

The same thief that burglarized the clerk's office also got a much smaller amount of private funds ($29) from the office of Register of Deeds Bill Parker, but missed something less than $100 in county funds that was in the same drawer of Parker's desk.

The exact loss in the burglary of Clerk Whitaker's office is not known, since there is still some uncertainty about the amount of cash and checks in a return that was made to the clerk by Justice of Peace James Simmons shortly before the robbery, and which was among the cash and checks stolen.

The audit showed a total theft from Whitaker's office of $9,031.34, plus the returns of Simmons which were just over $1,000. Of the $9,031.34 there was $3,497.66 in cash and $5,533.68 in checks.

Most of the checks were deposits made on land sales being held under court supervision, payment of which was stopped.

The commissioners also passed a resolution Monday asking the Local Government Commission to send a man to the county to assist in setting up a standard system of accounting and bookkeeping for all county offices.

Welfare Funds Are Adjusted Monday by County Commissioners

Monday the Jones County Board of Commissioners approved the transfer of $1,000 from the welfare fund for the aid of the permanent and totally disabled to the fund for old age assistance.

The board also voted from the general fund an additional $300 to help fill out the needs of the funds for aid to dependent children.

Cancer Crusade Next Week in Jones County

"Guard Your Family" is again the theme of the American Cancer Society Crusade which opens in Jones County on Monday, April 9.

In addition to this slogan, the American Cancer Society has instituted an accelerated program of public education called "Six for Sixties" announced Mrs. Virgil Bender, president of the Jones County Unit. These six main public education target sites are emphasized by the Society together with the annual health check-up and the seven danger signals.

The Cancer Society's annual Crusade not only raises the funds for continuing the Society's work but has another objective — to inform the public about cancer. Over two million volunteers, interested in cancer control and education give their time, energy, and special talents each April to help raise funds and tell the life-saving story about the value of early diagnosis.

Tom H. Foscoe of Maysville is again campaign chairman for the Jones County Crusade. He and his corps of volunteer workers will call on every house in the county in an effort to acquaint their friends and neighbors with the life-saving information distributed by the Society.

Mrs. Bender praised the work that Foscoe and his workers did for Jones County in last year's campaign and asked that Jones county residents be ready to receive these people into their homes. The information they will receive may save their lives.

The fact that more than 1,000,000 Americans now living have been cured of cancer, Mrs. Bender said, is dramatic proof of the effectiveness of the educational program of the American Cancer Society.
