TERESA CREAGH

Well, this was the week we had our big day off. You might know that it would be cold and cloudy for a good part of the day. However, most of us managed to find something to do, even if it was only to rest from school for awhile.

We can really be proud of our football team this week. Last Friday night, in spite of a steady rain, our boys defeated East Duplin by a score of 6-0. Our touchdown was scored by Franklin Andrews. Coach Amos Taylor is doing a fine job, and we feel very sure that our boys will win the game with Pamlico which is this Friday night, and our Homecoming game with Burgaw the following Friday night. The Pep Squad and the cheerleaders are doing an excellent job, but they can't do it all alone. We want EVERYONE to come to the games, and support our team.

The Kappa Gammas attended the presentation "Antony and Cleopatra" last Thursday night at East Carolina College. It was an excellent performance and was enjoyed by all who attended.

This Friday night (Nov. 1), the group plans to attend the presentation of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" which will be presented at Raleigh in Memorial Auditorium. The musical will be directed by Abe Burrows who wrote and produced the Broadway presentation.

Wonder . . . . .

What Brenda Hill and Nancy O'Bryan have in common?

If Betty Jean Sumrell, Lib McDaniel, and I have run down a dormitory hall lately?

Why Betty Jo Hudson wants to know who Billy Harrison really likes?

What Trenton girl has an interest in the Pollock family?

How Donna Collins and Glenn Greene are getting along?

Who Mary Ann DeBruhl has a crush on now?

If Donna Mallard and Gerald Dixon are still getting along all right?

SENATOR SAM ERVIN ★ SAYS ★

As Congress moves into the tenth month of the session, tax and civil rights proposals command priority attention, but day to day legislative work still consists in large measure of activities involving a multitude of other important bills.

These activities center on appropriation bills and a number of other House-passed measures now coming up for Senate consideration. Last week one of these bills was the House-passed omnibus crime bill undergoing hearings before the Senate District of Columbia Committee. I testified before this Committee to urge passage of legislation to amend court rulings known as the Mallory and Durham Rules.

The Mallory ruling held inadmissible the voluntary statement of a convicted and self-confessed rapist because of the seven hour delay in taking him before a committing magistrate. In the Mallory ruling, time alone was the deciding factor. There was no showing that any duress was used in extracting the confession from the prisoner.

I contend that it is unsound to apply time alone as a measure of admissibility into evidence of a confession.

The Durham Rule is the existing test for determining responsibility for criminal conduct in the District of Columbia. This rule, I think, is inadequate, because it establishes no clear standards whereby a jury may ascertain the defendant's responsibility for crime.

The significance of the proposed amendments to court procedures in the District of Columbia is that crime has become an almost individual concern in the Nation's Capital. The Metropolitan Police force labors valiantly to combat rising crime rates here, but as long as the Mallory Rule places an unrealistic road-block in the way of crime detection and enforcement the prospects for improvement appear dim.

I am hopeful that Congress will take cognizance of this situation which certainly needs remedial legislation.

HIGHER EDUCATION BILL

Senate passage of the Higher Education bill authorizing $1.9 billion in construction funds over a five-year period to public, private, and church-operated colleges and universities sends the measure to a Senate-House conference which will determine whether the bill can be acceptable to Congress. I voted against the bill, because it gives re-

Angus Sale Nov. 6th Kinston Livestock Arena

The Second Annual Tobaccoland Angus Sale will be held at the Livestock Arena in Kinston on Wednesday, November 6, at 1 p. m. This event is being sponsored by religious denominations access to the public purse in a wholesale fashion in violation of the First Amendment.

On the other hand, I trust that the conferees will keep my amendment that makes it certain that any taxpayer can find out through a judicial determination whether Congress is exceeding its powers under the Constitution.

More and more, Congress is confronted by educational requests for Federal assistance. There is a need for a definitive answer to questions involving church and state which crop up with the consideration of almost every educational bill.

Prior to Senate acceptance of my amendment there was no foreseeable method by which the issue could be presented to the courts. Since Congress is apparently unwilling to adhere to an outright ban of aid to church schools and colleges, the next best method is to allow any taxpayer to have the courts determine the validity of such appropriations.
