Corncob dust and blood albumen from steers are the latest contributions of agriculture to the cosmetic industry.

The corncob powder is sold and used as is, with no perfume or colorant added. The effectiveness of the powder comes from its ability to absorb moisture from the skin more rapidly than talcum powder.

Micro-organisms, which cause skin disorders, require moisture to thrive, so the corncob dust gives a healthy complexion by keeping the skin moisture-free. At the moment this item is sold through beauty supply houses only.

The albumen from steers' blood can be found at counters where the more expensive cosmetic lines are sold. It is packaged in small, decorative bottles, goes by different trade names, and is advertised as a temporary wrinkle remover.

This is a clear liquid and is applied sparingly for a light film on the face. As it dries a thin mask is formed which smoothes out the lines and wrinkles. Powder base and powder are put on over this and a lady is all set for a few hours.

The film is supposed to wear away gradually and it seems that at about four hours a few pats of water on the face will reactivate the mask for a while longer.

Kinston, North Carolina
May 26, 1964

Dear Friends:

I urge each of you to vote on May 30th for the candidates of your choice.

Personally, I shall vote for Dan Moore for Governor. In my opinion, Dan is the best qualified man in the race. I have known him intimately since he was a small boy. No man in North Carolina has a better back-ground or heritage than Dan Moore. His father, a Superior Court Judge, died at the early age of thirty-two, leaving a widow and four children, with very little money. Hence, it became necessary for Dan to work his way both through high school and college.

Dan arose at 5 o'clock in the morning to fire the coal furnace of Sylva High School, and then to sweep the floors of the school building to pay his expenses. When he entered college at the University of North Carolina, he studied hard and worked summers in a large mercantile and farmers supply store under the supervision of my oldest brother unloading freight cars and other equally hard work to earn money for his college expenses. Dan never shirked a duty in work or play, in school or in his Church. You could always count on him doing his best.

After Dan Moore had earned his college degree with Phi Beta Kappa honors and his Law Degree, he began the practice of law in Sylva. He quickly rose to the top in his profession and was soon recognized as one of the most able lawyers in his section of the State.

Dan served as Town Attorney, County Attorney, District Solicitor, Representative to the State Legislature and Superior Court Judge. During World War II, at the age of thirty-seven, and with a wife and two small children, he enlisted in the Army as a private and served over-seas with a paratroop division.

After ten years on the bench Dan resigned as Superior Court Judge to become general counsel for the Champion Paper Company, one of this State's largest industries.

Add to the above the fact that Judge Moore is a dedicated Churchman and civic leader, and you have the quantities that North Carolina needs for its next Governor. I recommend Judge Moore without qualification.

Sincerely yours,
WESTON C. REED
