Henderson Supporting Lyndon, But With 'Its'

Congressman David N. Henderson said today that he has not planned to attend the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City.

He pointed out that he is not a delegate to the convention and that his absence under these circumstances should not be taken as an indication that he is boycotting the convention or does not expect to support the national ticket in the fall.

"Like Senator Ervin," Henderson said, "I long ago formed the good habit of supporting the entire Democratic ticket from President to constable, and I do not expect to change that policy now."

"President Johnson knows," he continued, "And my constituents know, that I do not agree with the President on all issues. I do, however, agree with him on considerably more issues than I agree upon with the nominee of the other party, and it will not be my purpose to give any aid or comfort to Mr. Goldwater."

Henderson said he expected to spend the week of the convention planning his fall activities including a visitation schedule which will cover all ten counties in his district as well as a "vigorous campaign" throughout the district.

Pollocksville Library OK'd, Constable Named by Board

Monday the Jones County Board of Commissioners made numerous adjustments in the 1964-65 budget, including transfer of $700 from the general fund to permit opening a branch library in Pollocksville.

Other adjustments included $1064.83 transferred from the general fund to the forestry fund, $10,000 from the general fund to the school capital outlay fund and $3,000 from the general fund to the general operating fund of the Jones County branches of the Neuse Regional Library.

The board also named Nick Mallard constable of Pollocksville Township.

Board Chairman Neison Banks was authorized to make whatever arrangements were necessary to permit trucks to get to the surplus

Jacksonville Negro Charged with Raping Pollocksville Girl

James Mills of Jacksonville route 2 was arrested Sunday on a warrant, charging him with the capital crime of rape.

Sheriff Brown Yates says the arrest came as the result of a complaint filed by a Pollocksville negro girl who said she went to ride with Mills and he took her into area off the Island Creek Road, where he committed the assault.

A preliminary hearing will be given Mills Friday in Recorder's Court.

Other arrests during the past week include that of John H. White of Pollocksville and Carl Taylor of Maysville on charges of public drunkenness and James Taylor of Trenton route 1 who is accused of drunken driving.

DRIVING ADDICT?

Harvey Holloman of Oriental Avenue in Kinston was given a 12-month jail term Tuesday by Recorder Buck Wooten, after being found guilty of driving while his driving license was permanently revoked.

food warehouse back of the ag building.

Recently the owner of abutting property about the food warehouse has fenced the area on the northern side because the county and Trenton officials refused to pay rent on land that was being used for parking about the warehouse.

Another Auto Death

At about midnight Sunday Horace C. Grady of Pink Hill route 1 suffered injuries near the Lenoir-Duplin county line in a one-car accident from which he died about two hours later. Grady, 31, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Grady, was riding alone and at an apparent high rate of speed when his car left the road, flipped over several times and came to rest.

Veterans Picnic

World War I Veterans, Barracks No. 720, are sponsoring a Family Picnic Rally for Veterans of the 5th District at New Bern Sunday, August 9th, 1:30 P.M. Veterans from other counties in the District — Jones, Craven, Carteret, and Pamlico — are invited to bring their wives and a picnic basket and enjoy the program. Some of the State and District Officers are expected to appear on the Program.

Land Transfers

Jones County Register of Deeds Bill Parker reports recording one land transfer in his office during the past week, that of 25 acres in Pollocksville Township from Jerry and Dixie Stapleford to Virgil and Joyce Edwards.

Graduate Center For School Officials to Be Located in Kinston

Kinston will be the site of a unique graduate center for school administrators this fall, President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina announced Tuesday. Admission to the Kinston center will be limited to holders of masters degrees who have certificates in administration or supervision.

At the other five North Carolina graduate centers, qualified public school teachers and administrators working toward the masters degree may be enrolled. Centers already established outside Chapel Hill are in Charlotte, Greensboro, Raleigh, and Winston-Salem. The Kinston center is the first one east of Raleigh.

The Kinston center was established under the auspices of the UNC School of Education at the request of principals and superintendents in the eastern part of North Carolina. "This advanced graduate program is in keeping with plans of the State Board of Education to upgrade public school administration in the state," President Friday commented.

The first course at the center, School Law, will be taught at the Lenoir County Industrial Education Center, east of Kinston. Allen W. Markham, assistant director of

August 25th Bids Asked For DuPont Plant Road

This week the highway commission included requests for bids on four-lanes for NC 11 between Kinston and the DuPont plant among 25 bids to be opened August 25th.

This particular Lenoir County project has been delayed since 1951 by assorted excuses, largely political, but now is scheduled begin at

Firemen Discuss Equipment Needs

Rudolph Pelletier presided at the Monday evening meeting of the Maysville Fire Department, held at the community building with approximately 20 members present.

The main topic of discussion was the purchasing of new equipment for the truck which will be needed when the water system is installed and ready for use in November.

The evening meal of fried fish, cole slaw, french fries and soft drinks were served by Howard Dudley, Lewis Eubanks and Jason Cumbo.

its intersection with Washington Street in Kinston and extend 8.817 miles to a point approximately one mile beyond the entrance to the DuPont plant.

Major realignment of the project is the bypassing of Grainger Station, which has caused considerable contention among those property owners whose lands are already sliced up by the existing NC 11, the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad and now again by this bypass of Grainger Station.

Other area election-year work to be bid on August 25th includes 58.494 miles of resurfacing work in Craven, Carteret, Jones and Pamlico counties, 16.75 miles of resurfacing in Greene, 7.8 miles in Onslow, 21.56 miles in Duplin and Pender and another 1.48 miles in Craven County from US 70 to Flanner's Beach.

Mothers Planning Week of Prayer

Evidencing their concern for the continuing rise in juvenile delinquency, crime and divorce in the United States, the North Carolina State Mothers Association is sponsoring a Week of Prayer August 10th — 16th in earnest petition for God's help in combating these evils in local communities.

Mrs. Harold C. Little of Denver, route 1, is Spiritual Life Chairman and Mrs. David S. Willis of Raleigh is President of the North Carolina State Mothers Association.

Jones County women who have been nominated for State Mother of the Year are Mrs. Z. A. Koonce, Mrs. Rom Mallard, Mrs. C. P. Banks and Mrs. S. D. Mallard.

Two Negroes Apply for Grainger Hi Admission

Kinston School Board Chairman Felix Harvey says application has been received from two negro students at Adkin High School who seek to transfer to Grainger High School with the opening of classes this fall.

The two are Gregor Josef Hannibal, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Hannibal of Grove Park and Barbara Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Carr of 1802 Cedar Lane.

Harvey says action will be taken on the applications at the regular meeting of the city school board next Monday night, August 10th.

These are the first applications of negroes to enter Grainger High School since the United States Supreme Court ruled that negroes were not capable of educating their own children and that they could only get their education by attending classes taught by white teachers.

Hannibal lives next door to Adkin High School and Miss Carr lives three blocks east of Adkin High School. Both would have to pass Adkin High School to reach Grainger High School. Each of the applicants is a rising 10th grader.

What The Future Holds on The Race Issue in America

By Jack Rider

Every person concerned with the future of our nation and the safety and rights of its citizens must have asked many times in recent weeks: "What will be the end of this racial crisis?"

I do not know, but on the basis of history and on some understanding of the pressures exerted on this issue it is possible to register some guesses on What the Future Holds on the Race Issue in America.

It does not require a very fine crystal ball to predict that we have not seen an end to the rioting and killing and looting that has torn many of our major northern cities apart in recent weeks.

The frustrations of the negro as he finds how empty and endless the lies of politicians are, the breakdown of respect for law which stems from the United States Supreme Court's deliberate destruction of the rights of the majority in favor of the rights of the minority, the empty headed platitudes that drip from the mouths of a majority in the nation's pulpits and the subtle propaganda for anarchy that stems from the cynical "intellectuals" all combine to create an atmosphere in which violence is as natural as breathing.

To preserve the nation this violence, innocent as its "troops" may be, will have to be met with violence. Turning the other cheek will not work in a world that never knew the gentle philosophies of Christianity.

Once this violent virus has run its course and the gutters of numerous American cities run red with the blood of the misled the voters will destroy at the ballot box those particular politicians whose greed has so largely been responsible for the entire problem.

This trend has already begun to exert itself in politics in every part of the nation.

In Boston voters turned their back on an enforced system of school integration that would have hauled children about like animals so that each school in the city would have the same percentages of white and negro students.

In Seattle by an overwhelming vote an ordinance aimed at opening all housing under law to negroes was killed.

The most liberal of Southern states, Florida and North Carolina, have this spring tossed out by very large margins the liberal breed of politicians.

Call it a "White Backlash" or simply an assertion of majority rights the result is the same: That politicians are learning in every part of the nation that the white vote is about 10 times as great as the negro vote.

Does this mean that the negro is in danger of recrimination?

In one man's opinion it does not, but it does mean that the negro will lose his preferential position that has been given to him by a long series of legislative, executive and judicial decrees that were nine parts political and one part humanitarian.

The better elements of negro society have not been helped by the paternalistic prostration the nation has experienced in the past few years before the worst elements of negro society.

The respectable, working, tax-paying elements of negro society have suffered along with the same elements of white society in supporting the government holiday that has been enjoyed for so long by so many of the sordid members of both white and negro society.

The revolting mania suffered by so many of us in the recent past has not only centered around the unproductive members of negro society but has exhibited itself in an absurd concern for the "poor criminal," who like the illegitimate mother of nine, is not responsible for his acts, but is the helpless victim of his environment.

All of this maudlin concern for the unfortunate, and the "don't-give-a-damns" will not pass away overnight, and our society will not revert to a Spartan concept under which survival of the fittest is the absolute rule.

But for too long government, with an eye to keeping in power and expanding its control over people in all walks of life has exerted most of its effort in the survival and proliferation of the unfit to the great detriment of the fit.

National insanity of the kind we have seen for the past dozen years can only be cured by the shock treatment that is being experienced in major cities where every possible right has been given to these professional freedom marchers, whose basic search is for freedom from work, freedom from responsibility and freedom from controls under which the rest of us have to live.

There are many evidences that this shock treatment is working well and that in a few more elections the body politic will return to something near normal and the nation and its negro citizens too can return to the more important problems that confront us all.

And the nation will return to those tried and proven ways under which the worker is rewarded, the wrongdoer is punished and the laggards in our society will be permitted the luxury of their own misery, minus government hand-outs.
