Boating Accidents Claim 22 in State During First Quarter; Up from '64

At the present writing, the number of boating accidents reported totals 22. Fatalities also number 22.

The number of fatalities for 1965's first quarter is four above the total number for the first quarter of 1964. Included in the 1965 total, however, are three deaths associated with the loss of a government vessel and one aboard a tug. All of the accidents occurring during the first quarter of 1964 involved pleasure craft or small commercial fishing craft. It would be misleading to combine small craft accidents with heavy government or commercial vessel accidents without making a distinction. Of course, the loss of a life is tragic regardless of the activity at the time, and too there is often something to be learned from the facts surrounding any accident.

Three boating accidents occurred in January, four in February, seven in March, and eight in April. Here we can see the monthly increase as the boating season draws near. Last year there were no accidents reported in January and February but reports in March and April brought the total up to 18 fatalities and 20 accidents for 1964's first quarter.

Too often the actual or direct cause of a boating accident is not known. This is especially true when there are no survivors. Investigators may find that the boat capsized, but why it did so is the real important question. This is the question in several of the accidents mentioned here, since capsizing is again a leading type of accident.

Here are the various types of accidents revealed by the accident reports for the spring quarter of 1965; capsizing, seven (caused by various reasons such as use of unstable, home-made boat, standing in a small boat, rough water, etc.); fire or explosion, five (cause of this type is often hard to determine, but it is important to follow at all times the prescribed rules and standards concerning the fire prevention aboard a craft); collision with another boat, one; overloading and subsequent sinking or capsizing, three; falling overboard, three; hitting underwater objects, two; sinking due to rough water hull damage, one; asphyxiation due to sleeping in closed cabin with stove on, one.

The boats involved varied considerably in size, but the old eleven footer was the boat involved in at least four deaths.

Well, our election for Jones Central officers and Student Council officers was held on Monday, May 17. The Student Council and Junior Class results are complete. They are as follows:

Junior Class — President Gary Salt, Vice President Jere Mills, Secretary Nancy O'Bryan, Treasurer Pam Scott.

The results from the other classes are still awaiting the outcome of several "run-offs." However, we would like to congratulate those who have already been elected and to wish them success as they fulfill their duties next year.

Last Friday night, May 7, Jones Central held its annual athletic banquet. The address of the evening was by George Thompson, coach at Grainger High School in Kinston. Awards were presented by Principal Jeter Taylor. We are very proud of our JC athletes and of our athletic department, and we congratulate them on a fine year.

The coaching staff of Jones Central is as follows: Varsity — Thomas M. Pritchard and Jean E. Worthington; Junior Varsity — Jerry Elmore and David D. Porter.

Last Friday afternoon, we held what we believe to be a rather unique event at Jones Central,

The operators of all boats, with the exception of two, were well out of the teenage category with the majority being over 25 years of age.

There is still a lot of boating ahead, and if all boaters would seriously review the tragedies mentioned above and consider with some very sober thinking those of the seasons past, the second, the third and fourth quarters of 1965 may not be so costly.

especially for this area. The JC coaching staff along with Mrs. Ann Chapman held a girls' track meet. Freshmen girls from Pamlico High School and South Lenoir High School as well as Jones Central participated. Jones Central captured first place 41 points; South Lenoir took second place with 23 points. The JC team was especially proud of Betty Wilson who placed first in five events. Congratulations to all the JC girls for a fine performance.
