Mrs. N. N. Mattocks Hostess to Circle

The Lillian Foscoe Circle of the Methodist Church met Monday with Mrs. N. N. Mattocks.

The meeting opened with silent prayer after which Mrs. A. H. McDaniel gave the meditation, selecting scriptures from Proverbs 31. One hymn was sung.

Mrs. J. R. Pelletier introduced the program, "A Look at Ourselves As Christian Women," asking the question, is she any different from the non-Christian woman.

Parts taken were: A Unique Responsibility — Mrs. Mattocks, A Unique Fellowship — Mrs. McDaniel, How Much Should Christians Tolerate — Mrs. Pelletier and Where Does A Christian Woman Volunteer Her Services? — Mrs. I. F. House. Mrs. C. C. Dameron gave the conclusion and led a discussion. Prayer concluded the program portion.

Routine business was conducted and deeds for the months were reported. After the benediction, the hostess served cake and punch.

Monday Meet of Fellowship Circle

Mrs. J. C. Foscoe and Mrs. Delbert Meadows were program leaders and hostesses when the Fellowship Circle met Monday evening in the Foscoe home.

Mrs. Meadows led the devotional, using scriptures from Malachi. The program was a discussion on pledging and budgets. Others taking parts were Mrs. Leroy Meadows and Mrs. Joe Thompson.

During the business hour, Mrs. Lawrence Mallard presented the new programs for the coming church year which will be taken from the Methodist Woman. Miss Nell Jones gave an interesting report on the School of Missions held recently at Fayetteville, which she, Mrs. R. L. Mattocks, and Mrs. R. N. Knight attended.

Following the benediction, cake and punch were served to those named above and Mesdames Bert Mercer, Rober Mallard and Miss Jackie Jones.

SAM ERVIN ★ SAYS ★

Congress is getting in a mood to adjourn, but there are some stumbling blocks which could slow down that event.

The major hurdles appear to be the Administration's farm bill, a series of labor proposals, and a possible renewal of the battle over a Constitutional Amendment to permit State Legislatures to apportion one house on a basis other than population.

The farm measure is fraught with its usual problems. These are the balancing of the interests of the farmer, industry and the taxpayer. This time the heart of the problem seems to lie in cotton. Domestic cotton stockpiles have been building up in the past year, and a new look at cost has been ordered by the Administration.

In 1964 two-price cotton that raised havoc with domestic mills was adjusted by a cotton price equalization bill. That law permitted domestic textile mills to buy cotton at a level competitive with foreign mills. It was achieved by Federal payments to offset export subsidies to make American cotton saleable on the world market.

Under last week's House-approved bill, the program would be changed to a direct subsidy to growers who cut production, and cotton support prices would be reduced to a competitive rate less than the current world market.

Growers are fearful that this could mean an end eventually of government support programs for cotton, and the measure has stirred much controversy and opposition.

The Senate Agriculture Committee has yet to make its report on the farm proposals. Before reaching a conclusion on the merits of this legislation, I plan to study the Senate report and the views of those affected by the bill.

Labor proposals on right-to-work laws and minimum wage amendments constitute a major item on the pending calendar. There are intense feelings about the repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act of 1947. This section permits the States to enact laws forbidding unions and employers to execute agreements that require union membership as a condition of employment. The proposal could get involved in a renewed battle over reapportionment of State Legislatures.

Senator Dirksen, author of the reapportionment amendment, has served notice that he is considering such action. On August 4, the reapportionment amendment failed to secure the necessary two-thirds vote required for Constitution changes, but did win 57 Senate votes. Thus reapportionment considerable Senate sentiment. Moreover, there are nineteen states which currently have right-to-work laws. The joining of debate on a dual issues of reapportionment and right-to-work laws as a State area of legislation could bring on extended discussion.

There are two other controversial issues which could upset any adjournment timetable. One is the immigration amendments which propose the most sweeping revision of this Act in 40 years. The other is the possibility of an extension of debate over foreign aid on the appropriation bill for that troubled program. In past sessions, foreign aid has slowed adjournment for weeks. Three other appropriation bills are not likely to bar adjournment. They are for defense, military construction and public works.

The adjournment target set for three weeks hence. Such a miracle has been wrought in the past when adjournment fever really set in.

'Sleeping Tom?'

Early Sunday morning Deputy Sheriff Elijah Tyndall found McKinley Williams of Kinston route 3 beneath a trailer belonging to Mrs. Barbara Goodman, near Loftin Crossroad. People had complained of a "Peeping Tom" in the area and when Tyndall answered the call he found Williams. Mrs. Goodman was not at home. Williams was charged with trespassing.

YOUTH INDICTED

Teenagers Michael Foss and Jimmy Roberts of La Grange route 3 were charged with breaking and entering early Saturday morning when they were caught inside the Chevrolet garage in La Grange by Deputy Sheriff Elijah Tyndall and Policeman Robert Pelletier.

World is not entirely peopled with those who are anxious to hide their own lusts behind the shirt tails of Mother Government. There are still left in the world a few true liberals, who are willing to stand between the awesome and terrible powers of government and the lonely individual. I hesitate to apply this flattering name to myself but I will since this is my basic philosophy.
