Federal Loan Approved to Build Jones County Country Club on Trent River

Congressman Walter B. Jones announced last week the approval of $230,000, insured loan by the Farmers Home Administration to develop a recreational area in Jones County.

This loan will finance the purchase of 187 acres of land, and pay for construction of an 18-hole golf course, pro shop and locker room, club house, swimming pool with bath house facilities, tennis court, picnic area and boating ramp.

Jones stated that this loan was obtained through the Jones County Recreational Park Association, a non-profit association of 225 rural families, most of whom reside in Jones County.

Jones stated further that the park will service the communities of Trenton, Pollockville, Maysville, Cove City, Comfort and all other communities in Jones and other adjoining counties.

Approximately 20,000 people are living in the area, and it is expected that some 1,500 will use the facility. Approximately 100 people will be employed in the construction of this project after which, at least 6 new jobs will be provided in the operation and maintenance of this recreational facility.

Congressman Jones stated further that members of the association will pay $40,000 of the cost of the project development. The loan will be repaid from annual dues paid by the members in addition to income received from fees charged to non-members.

'Shotgun Concept' Zeroes in on Culturally Deprived in Lenoir System

By Libby Rider
"A shotgun concept is employed—to be aimed at the arena rather than one corner." This statement in the first report for the Language Arts Development Program under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act shows the basic approach for cultural improvement of the culturally deprived in Lenoir County Schools.

Lenoir County school personnel headed up the planning for this program early this year. Poverty was determined in four Negro schools: Banks, Frink, Savannah, and Woodington.

The researchers identified the needs of the disadvantaged children: language arts, culture, audio and speech development, physical fitness, health service, kindergarten training, in-service training and a central instructional media center.

These needs if fulfilled were to give "better advantage to the disadvantaged," and provide an educational solution to their problems.

The budget for the plan is $707,421.06, resembling machine gun fire more than shotgun fire.

Included in the budget was $44,144 for filmstrips, $10,400 for maps, globes, and charts, $120,000 for library books, $5,400 for 120 record players, $17,440 for 82 filmstrip viewers, and $10,000 for playground equipment. Eighty teacher aides, 30 new secretaries, four nurses, and one psychologist were part of the enlargement of the administration.

However, only four new classroom teachers were to be added. (1 per school) A central media center was established (as an "adult check-out center" of equipment for the disadvantaged). Thirty-two mobile trailers for additional space for the additional personnel were purchased.

Through testing, the researchers found the disadvantaged to have a below grade placement ranging as low as four years one month below grade level.

They evaluated the causes as lack of oral and written expression, and poverty. An attack was begun on a "subculture" in aesthetic appreciation.

For example, in the music field, "fine recorded music" was to be played through the intercom system before and after school and coordinated with music lessons. "Simple information about the composer is to be given. Persistent and repetitious reminders will be used. Posters with the composer's name and picture are to be posted in hallways and classrooms. Full-length mirrors were placed at several hallway locations and in each room. "Grooming is thought to be a part of culture."

One of the basic objectives was the improvement of the self-image. The researchers felt that much frustration was involved with the children who had to exist in two areas of communication, one with his home and subculture and one with his teachers and "more fortunate members of society."

Baselines for evaluation were established for comparative results of before and after the program was begun, based on observation and testing. Project Director Frank Wiley, the chief of staff for this army, reported this week that the results of the evaluation would not be published until the latter part of the summer.

Spring Was Late This Year But It's Finally Gotten Here

This long line was a long time in forming since this year Eastern North Carolina has suffered the coldest spring in recent memory, which has curtailed activity around the old swimming hole and Kinston swimming pools. But on Monday the late spring sun finally bore down and the line extended half a block back from the door to Emma Webb Pool, and as can be seen in the picture, one young man was jumping for joy, or the photographer. And this happy line on a hot spring day is an apt time to bring in a few reminders about how the happiest holiday can turn suddenly into tragedy if basic safety rules are ignored in all water sports. Among these important lifesavers are: 1. Never swim alone. 2. Never swim immediately after meals. 3. Never try to do more in or on the water than you really know you can do. 4. Remember that sun and water are a combination that can turn pale skins into painful blisters. 5. Never encourage another person to go beyond his depth or his endurance in any water sport.
