

HAVE A CHILI PARTY!

What's the first thing you think of when you're planning a party—the food? Does the idea of preparing "eats" for a crowd scare you? It needn't. Here's a suggestion for some really easy "party-fare" that will please everyone.

Have a "Chili-Party"! Let convenient canned condensed soups come to your aid . . . chili beef and tomato soups. This recipe for "Mexicali Chili" is both economical and simple to prepare. You'll notice it only calls for one pound of ground beef. It's extended by the chili beef soup and Cheddar cheese, so it is bound to be protein-rich.

Corn chips and a dip are natural starters for this delicious "Mexicali Chili." Accompany with a crisp green salad of chicory and cucumber slices with your favorite dressing. Don't forget ho loaves of buttered French bread, too.

For dessert serve something sweet and cool like "flan," a caramel covered custard or "cocada," a coconut pudding garnished with almonds.

Olé! Have a great party.
