Summer Jobs Open for 200 Youths in Jones-Pamlico-Craven Counties Under 'War on Poverty' Summer Program

According to information released today by John George, Director of the Neighborhood Youth Corps in Craven, Jones and Pamlico counties, the U. S. Department of Labor has authorized employment this summer of 200 additional high school students.

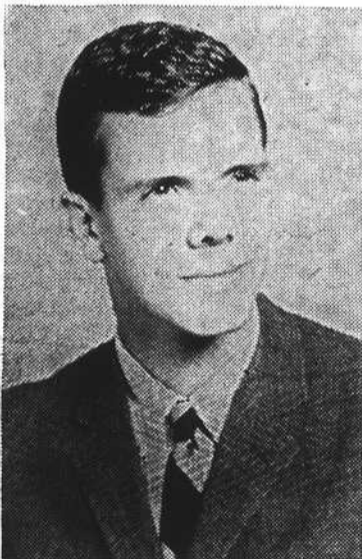

The special summer program, George said, is in conjunction with the national effort to relieve unemployment problems of young people struggling to complete their high school education in spite of low family incomes that prevent many from remaining in school.

Positions to be filled by enrollees in public non-profit agencies and organizations include clerical, maintenance, construction, municipal, forest ranger aides and painter helpers; also recreation, library, community worker and warehousemen aides.

Applications for summer employment are being taken at the NYC office, 409 George Street, in New Bern, North Carolina, George stated, giving the age limitations as 16 through 21 and pointing out that other eligibility requirements are determined by economic standards set up by the U. S. Department of Labor, sponsor of the program.

John Hughes Pollock Will Leave Two Children an 'Education'; Others Land

The will of John Hughes Pollock, Jones Central High School vocational agriculture teacher, who was killed early this month in a Carteret County wreck distributes his estate to his wife and their five minor children.

Two of the children are left a four-year college education in some college of their choice in North Carolina and to the others Pollock's considerable land holdings were left.

To his wife, Virginia Bunting Pollock, the will left a life estate in the Trent Field Farm, known as the "Wooten Farm", and at her death the farm will go to his two sons.

The younger child, a daughter, Polly Lee Pollock, was left a one-third undivided interest in the "Simmons Place" sometimes referred to as the "J. S. Pollock Farm".

The Pollock home and a summer home on Cedar Island were jointly owned by Pollock and his wife and she of course received title to these at his death.

Two residential lots in Trenton were left to Mrs. Pollock and the five children equally.

The daughters who were left the college education or "its cash equivalent" are Sallie Ann Pollock and Eva Virginia Pollock.

Bank deposits of several thousand dollars were left equally to Mrs. Pollock and the five children.

Jones County Remains Eligible for War on Poverty Funds for 1967-68

The following letter was received last week by Jones County Commission Chairman James Barbee. It is self explanatory.

Dear Mr. Barbee:

The purpose of this is to reacquaint you with the fact that Jones County will continue eligible to participate in the programs of the Economic Development Administration for, in all probability, at least an additional year beginning July 1st.

It is important that new and continuing town and county officials and other leaders throughout the County be acquainted and reminded of those extra economic strengthening and job-creating opportunities afforded by the programs of this Agency. As leader of your county's governing body, I know you'll want to assist making and keeping these friends mindful of this.

The ages old major methods of increasing tax flow into local, state, and national treasurers is to raise tax rates. EDA was created to assist with increasing these tax totals by making possible new and improved job opportunities.

I send you best wishes and the assurance of my continuous availability to assist in developing any proposal from Jones which could qualify for evaluation by this Agency.

Sincerely,
Charles S. Edwards

Sharpest Jump Yet Recorded in Crime Reported by FBI in First '67 Quarter

According to figures made available this week through the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports and released by Attorney General Ramsey Clark, serious crime in the United States jumped 20 percent in the first three months of 1967 when compared with the same period in 1966.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said this substantial upsurge in the Nation's crime was reflected in all Crime Index offenses. Crimes of violence, as a group, recorded a 21 percent increase with murder up 23 percent, forcible rape 8 percent, robbery 32 percent, and aggravated assault 15 percent. The group of crimes against property rose 20 percent, with burglary up 21 percent, larceny $50 and over in value 18 percent, and auto theft 20 percent.

According to the FBI Director, the group of cities with 100,000 or more inhabitants had an overall 20 percent increase. Crime in suburban communities rose 22 percent on the average, and the rural areas were up 16 percent. The effect of the Nation's crime increase was felt in all geographic regions. Hoover noted that the regional trends were consistent with the Western States up 21 percent, followed by the North Central and Southern States up 20 percent each, and the Northeastern States up 18 percent. All crime classifications recorded increases in the four geographical regions.

In making these figures available, the FBI Director called attention to the unusually sharp percentage increase in the crime of robbery. He stated every city population group contributed to this trend with the increases ranging from 20 percent in cities having over one million population to 42 percent in the group of cities with 250,000 to 500,000 population. Robbery in the suburbs was up 37 percent and increased 22 percent in the rural areas. Robbery recorded substantial increases in all geographic regions as well.

Hoover cautioned that the 20 percent rise in serious crime in the United States for this three-month period was the sharpest recorded since the publication of quarterly reports began in 1958. The FBI Director stated that a full explanation of the reasons for such sharp increases is difficult because the upward trend was distributed quite evenly in all geographic regions, large and small cities, suburban and rural areas. The fact remains that these crime increases are real and the law enforcement machinery needs the full support of government and citizens alike.
