Fall Cattle Auctions To Sell 38,600 Head Underway

The annual fall sales of feeder calves and yearling steers will begin Sept. 17 with a total of 38,600 head expected to be auctioned on 32 sales.

The series of organized sales began on the 17th with a feeder calf sale at Oxford and a yearling steer sale at Asheville.

Sam Buchanan, extension beef cattle specialist at North Carolina State University, said this year's sales will draw some 2,000 more cattle than were sold last fall. Consignments indicate 22,600 head of feeders and 16,000 head of yearlings will be sold.

He added that current conditions indicate that cattlemen should receive about the same price for their cattle as they did a year ago. The feeder prices last fall averaged $26.17 per hundredweight. Yearling steers averaged $24.06.

The state sales are sponsored by the N. C. Cattlemen's Association, N. C. Department of Agriculture and the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service. Local producers and livestock markets cooperate.
