

— a weekly message relating the world of today to the lessons of Faith and Church ...

"I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase."
—Corinthians 111,6

In a world of plenty, we should not let ourselves forget from whence the blessings came. When the richness of life surrounds us, we should remember God, and give thanks. It is all too often that we speak to God only in prayer and supplication. In this time of Spring, the season of growing, see the wonders of the world which God created — and you may grow in faith and spirit.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMER

From Mrs. C. B. Sorrell, Owingsville, Ky.: So well I can remember the ways we used to travel, the old-fashion buggy with steel tires that made a funny grinding noise as we rode along. There were no rubber tires in those days. We had an old white mule and because he was gentle, we always drove him hitched to our buggy. I remember how ashamed I was when we went to town, for just about the time we got there he would start to bawl — and what a noise he would make. Everyone stopped and looked. The buggy had a small round case on the front where a whip was kept, but we never used a whip. There was a rain apron to button on the front when it rained, with a small slot for the reins to pass through.

We also had a two-wheeled cart we would use for short trips. When we went on picnics, or fishing, we would go in a two horse wagon, a rough ride. When there was a deep snow, dad would hitch the team to a sled and pile hay on for us to sit on for a good sleigh ride. How we loved that! I remember when we had hitching rails instead of parking meters. We also had the old wood burning train with the funny whistle. I took a ride on it when I was about ten years old and it was a great thrill.

couraging more anglers to sample the productive waters.

"It's the only way we can capitalize on those things we love about Tyrrell County without losing them to some form of pollution," said one Columbian recently. "We want to grow, but we want to grow wisely without sacrificing our natural resources."

That — in this age of pollution — is a refreshing approach. It is also one that is likely to succeed.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

EXAMPLE

The problem child is often a problem because parents believe they have fulfilled their responsibility when they tell the child what is right and what is wrong. Such an approach simply does not get the job done. Point a child in any direction and it is more than likely he will eventually fall back and follow in the footsteps of his parents.

The need, then, is for example. A child needs to be shown, not merely told. It is difficult for the child to establish a proper set of values when he observes that parents say one thing and do something else. A child may accept that some things are the adult prerogative, but such will not include the proper concepts of religion, brotherhood and fair play. If parents say, "go to church," and do not — what does a child think. If parents say, "love thy neighbor," and do not — why will a child do differently?

There is no substitute for example.

Pewter Care

Pewter is a soft metal and cannot be subjected to harsh polishes and scouring powders when cleaning. For routine care, wash pewter pieces in warm water and mild detergent. Rinse and rub dry. When you feel that polishing is needed, use a silver polish or a commercial cleaner made especially for pewter.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am 13 years old and I am feeling depressed. All of my friends have girl friends but I don't. I am not very handsome, though. I am just jealous or something. I look, look your best — but always am bashful, too."

OUR REPLY: Take your problems one at a time. You cannot cope with the others until you do something about the most important one — feeling depressed. You cannot look your best nor put your best face forward when you're feeling sour on the whole world. Try being a happy guy, even if you don't feel that way.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.
