Notice To Subscribers

The circulation department of the Times was forced this week to stop sending the paper to a number of subscribers who were behind.

This is regretted on the part of the publishers, but it is impossible to continue sending the paper unless it is paid up. A few more remain whose subscription has been out for only a week or so and you are urged to pay as soon as possible.

Your expiration date is marked on the label of your paper. Please turn to it now and see just when your subscription expires. A date of 4-36 would indicate that it expired this month. The first figure indicates the month that it expires.

The Times is only $1.00 per year. If your name has been taken from the list you are urged to send the dollar and have it started again. It will be a pleasure on the part of the circulation department.

FLIGHT--

Man is an arrow which soars through life to find rest in the sweet darkness of His earth. There, deep-rooted blossoms planted by his gentle hands, tenderly caress the shaft as it seeks eternal peace — so does Woody's Funeral Service offer service to those on earth, seeking rest from the trials of loss borne grief.

MANY WAYS FOR RURAL WOMEN TO EARN MONEY

Source of Profit May Be Found on Almost Every Farm For Women Who Like to Make Things.

On almost every farm is a wealth of material which may be turned into a source of profit by country women who like to make things with their hands.

There are so many ways of earning extra money that every woman can find something to suit her taste, said Mrs. Cornelia C. Morris, extension economist in food conservation and marketing at State College.

She told of an ingenious girl in Rutherford County who uses rye straw to make table mats, hot dish mats, and fans. Hooked rugs and braided rugs sell well if the colors are pleasing.

There is an increasing demand for handicraft articles, Mrs. Morris stated; good baskets and brooms of native material, buttons and buckles made of maple and applewood. Buttons made of nuts are lovely accessories for sweaters and knitted suits.

Honeysuckle and oak splits make beautiful baskets. People like to buy melon-shaped baskets and egg baskets like grandmother used, Mrs. Morris pointed out.

There is a growing demand for the old handicraft of the colonial days. Wool, cotton, and flax may be woven into exquisite coverlets, wall hangings, and rugs.

In the Smithsonian institute in Washington is a collection of hand-woven bags, towels, and table linens made by a rural North Carolina woman, Mrs. Finley Mast, of Valle Crucis, who died several months ago.

The woman who likes to cook can begin now to make strawberry jam for sale, Mrs. Morris continued. Later she can make blackberry and peach jam, tomato ketchup, and Chili sauce.

Motorists like to stop at roadside markets for fresh eggs, fruits, vegetables, flowers, fruit juices, butter, and the like. These markets are becoming more popular over the country every year.
