

"SNEERING" STAR
"SMILES" AGAIN

Bellamy Wins The Girl At Last In Latest Film.

DOLLY MADISON THEATRE
JULY 8TH.

It's "Smiling" Ralph Bellamy once again!

Used to be "Sneering" Ralph. But before that he was a smiler.

Just a few months ago it was jeers and hisses for the personable Ralph, for he was always cast as the guy who did his damndest to keep the hero from winning the gal. But now he's having his innings, and winning the fair lady in every picture he makes. He's a reformed villain.

But time was, some years ago, when Ralph was the fair-haired boy and always faced the descending curtain with the heroine clasped in his arms. Those were the days when Ralph was a footlights actor. But the movies changed all that.

In 1932 he joined the movies and in spite of his long record as a stage lover, filmland cast him as a villain and a villain he remained for nearly four years.

But that's all over now. He's a regular hero now, and has been for his past few pictures. Right now he's featured with Fay Wray in Columbia's "Roaming Lady," to show at the Dolly Madison Theatre on July 8th. He's cast as a daredevil air pilot, shanghaied by the father of the girl he loves, and sent to fight Chinese rebels. And he wins the girl in the end, in spite of oriental bandits, machine guns, scheming enemies and all such skulduggery.

SUTTER'S GOLD AT DOLLY MADISON

To Play Here on Monday and Tuesday, July 6th and 7th.

The turning point in the existence of California was the discovery of gold by James Marshall near Sutter's Mill on January 24, 1848. The same incident provides a climax for "Sutter's Gold" the Universal drama at the Palace theatre Monday and Tuesday, July 6 and 7 starring Edward Arnold as John Sutter.

Marshall rode at breakneck speed to tell Sutter of his fateful discovery. But he did not realize the destruction that was to follow, enveloping a peaceful land of bounteous crops.

Almost immediately, news of the discovery leaked out although Sutter tried to keep it secret. Men deserted their posts in tanneries, mills and fields, answering the siren song of gold. Soldiers at Fort Sutter joined the throng, tearing apart the buildings to get wood for their sluice boxes. From all over the United States an increasing horde of daring men began the journey to California and Sutter's gold.

Early in 1849 the first vessel to carry treasure hunters from the eastern seaboard entered the harbor of San Francisco. From that time on, other ships followed at frequent intervals.

Even earlier the first wagon trains had started the long trek across country. Soon there was an almost unbroken stream of wagons strung out for hundreds of miles, all making their way to the gold fields.

Gold seekers trampled waving crops under foot, taking forcible possession of any land which might hold gold. California was in the grip of The Great Madness, and there followed a period of lawlessness that destroyed Sutter's holdings.

This is the background for much of the action of "Sutter's Gold," directed by James Cruze. The cast supporting Edward Arnold includes Lee Tracy, Binnie Barnes, Katherine Alexander, Addison Richardson, Montague Love, John Miljan, Mitchell Lewis and thousands of extras.

DOLLY MADISON HAS JOHNNY MAC BROWN FOR JULY FOURTH

His Latest Western "Valley of the Lawless" to Play One Day.

Johnny Mack Brown confesses that he has never played a role more to his liking than that of Bruce Reynolds, in his latest Western, "Valley of the Lawless," which comes to the Palace Theatre in July 4th. Dramatically, the newspaper critics who previewed the production agree that it is the best thing he has ever done, and unquestionably the character demands and receives more sympathy than most of his former screen successes. What Johnny really enjoys is the strenuous demands made upon his athletic prowess. He loves the rough stuff, and gets a tremendous kick out of the fist battles in which he is obliged to engage, to say nothing of his amazing horsemanship stunts.

But the more discriminating among his numerous admirers will probably remember the picture not only for Johnny's tremendously effective fist battles and lightning gunplay, but because of the pity they will feel for him when false deductions and a rival's treachery induce the girl he loves to believe that he is the murderer of both her father and grandfather. It is in the scenes showing the conflict of emotions racking the star's mind that he wins popular approval for his tense visualization of various moods, ranging from hate to love, and longing for just revenge. But indeed, all through the picture Johnny Mack Brown furnishes satisfactory evidence that he is as talented a thespian as he is a noted athlete. And credit must be given the competent support he receives from his colleagues.

RECORDS HELP GROWERS QUALIFY

Those Participating in New Farm Program Need Records of Crops.

Farmers participating in the new farm program to keep records of the soil-conserving crops they grow and the soil-building practices they carry out.

The records will be a means of providing they are entitled to soil-building payments, said Dean I. O. Schaub, director of the State College extension service.

He pointed out that it is particularly important that farmers keep records showing the acreage of green manure crops grown and the date they are turned under.

They should also keep receipts showing purchases of ground limestone or superphosphate applied to the soil as a soil-building practice.

As a further means of proof, the dean suggested that farmers notify their local committeemen, or their county agent's office, whenever they carry out soil-building practices.

The notification does not have to be in writing, he continued. The important thing is to inform the committeemen.

Then in checking up on a grower's compliance the committeemen will take note of the practices carried out and give the farmer credit for them.

Before a producer can qualify for the payments, the dean emphasized, he will be required to submit proof of the soil-building practices he has followed.

This is why it is important to keep records, and notify the committeemen of all such practices observed in connection with the new program.

HIGHWAY DEATHS IN MAY SHOW INCREASE

Seven Percent Boost Noted Over 1935 Figure — Council Urges Alertness.

Chicago, June 29—An "alarming" increase in highway deaths during May was reported today by the national safety council.

After three months of steady decline in response to the council's country-wide campaign to save lives, motoring fatalities increased last month 7 percent above the mark of May, 1935.

Two thousand, nine hundred and seventy persons died on the nation's streets and roads during the month. The previous May deaths totaled 2,780.

The sudden change carried the average reduction in accident deaths for the first five months of the year down to 3 percent, less than half the campaign goal of 7 percent.

"Positive action" to reverse this unexpected trend during the remainder of the summer was promised within the next few days by W. H. Cameron, managing director of the council.

Unless the tide is turned, he said, continuance of the May rate would push the 1935 death total to 38,200, an all time high. The record was set with 37,000 in 1935.

"A relaxing of the alertness of pedestrians and motorists when they are abroad on the streets and highways" was the only reason Cameron could think of for the May setback.

"Certainly municipal and state governments have been more exacting and intelligent in the prosecution of traffic safety programs than ever before in the history of the country," he said.
