

Shirley Temple At Palace Today In Latest Picture

Plays Local Theatre Today and Tomorrow in "Stowaway." Rated as One of Her Best Pictures.

Romantic as the radiant Chinese moon, and as glamorous with its surrounding company of great stars, teeming with danger, excitement, thrills, war-lord bandits, and Shirley Temple as a little waif who talks and sings Chinese, Twentieth Century-Fox's new film, "Stowaway," comes today to the Palace theatre.

Yes, Shirley's in China now—and you'd think you'd never seen her before — so different is the setting . . . so surprising the story!

As Ching-Ching, the adopted daughter of a missionary couple killed in a rebel raid, Shirley is picked up by Robert Younger, a care-free young millionaire, who is touring the world in a vain attempt to get away from himself. Shirley, accidentally stowing away in Younger's car on a cruise ship, is instrumental in his meeting Alice Faye, pretty fiancée of stuffy young Allan Lane.

While waiting for Allan to join her at Hong Kong, Alice tours the town with Young and his little protégée, all of them having a glorious lark, which culminates in Shirley's winning a prize in a Chinese amateur show, singing in the native language.

Allan then appears to claim his bride-to-be, but they part in a fierce quarrel. Meanwhile Young is told by Chinese authorities that he cannot adopt Shirley, being unmarried, and must put her in a local orphanage. Determined not to part from her, he proposes to Alice that she become his wife in name only, then proceed to Reno for a divorce. This she does, but Young, realizing he is really in love with her, follows her to Reno and, with Shirley's artful aid, wins her consent to stay married.

Shirley's strong supporting cast includes, in addition to Robert Young and Alice Faye, Eugene Pallette, Helen Westly, Arthur Treacher, J. Edward Bromberg and Astrid Allwyn.

William A. Seiter was chosen to direct by Darryl F. Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox production chief, with B. G. De Sylva, Earl Carroll and Harold Wilson as associate producers. William Conselman, Arthur Sheekman and Nat Perrin wrote the screen play, based on a story by Sam Engel. Mack Gordon and Harry Revel wrote five new tune hits, and Irving Caesar composed a happy topical song.

SOLVING A MURDER MYSTERY

Fascinating story of how London's Scotland Yard detectives brought to justice the slayer of an unusual crime. One of many interesting stories in the January 3rd issue of the American Weekly, the magazine published each week with the Baltimore American. Your news dealer will supply you.

SPECIAL NEW YEAR'S EVE SHOW AT BOTH PALACE AND DOLLY

One Showing Only at Each Theatre. Thursday Night at 11:30.

The capture of a desperate criminal on an airplane flying by night in a terrific dust storm, is one of many exciting happenings in Warner Bros. "Fugitive in the Sky," which comes to the Palace and Dolly Madison theatres on New Year's Eve.

The criminal who, disguised as a woman — is fleeing from the law with a G-Man at his heels, reveals himself when a mysterious murder is committed in an airplane on which both he and the detective are passengers. Knowing that his disguise is bound to be discovered in the investigation of the murder, he holds up the detective, the other passengers and the pilots.

Handcuffing the G-Man and stripping everyone of their weapons, he orders the pilots to change their course, but the motors go dead in a terrific storm and the plane is grounded.

In the midst of the excitement a triangular romance is going on, with two men fighting for the love of a girl.

The girl is Jean Muir in the role of a nifty airplane hostess. Warren Hull, as a newspaperman who is following the G-Man because he thinks a big story is about to break, is one of the ardent lovers. Gordon Oliver, chief airplane pilot is the other.

FAMED TARZAN AGAIN BATTLES JUNGLE ODDS

"Tarzan Escapes" Depicts Further Adventures of Wilderness King.

PALACE THEATRE, MONDAY AND TUESDAY, JAN. 4-5TH.

Tarzan, amazing character of the fiction of Edgar Rice Burroughs, comes once more to the screen, as Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan are reunited in "Tarzan Escapes." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest jungle adventure romance to be seen commencing Monday at the Palace theatre.

The present story marks the closest approach of Tarzan to civilization. He is captured by a "bring-'em-back-alive" animal collector who locks him in a cage and plans to take him to London to exhibit. In a thrilling and dramatic climax the son of the primeval wilds outwits his civilized enemy, saves himself, and also his animal friends.

Breath-taking and spine tingling factors of the new picture include giant vampire bats from whose attack Weissmuller rescues a safari; the routing of an army of savages by a herd of stampeding elephants; native tortures; a plunge over a cliff, and a perilous escape from death in a crocodile-infested river. As in the preceding Tarzan stories Weissmuller swings his way through the jungle via trees and vines and in other ways exhibits his magnificent athletic prowess.

Richard Thorpe directed the new Tarzan picture, in which hundreds of people appear in the native scenes and in which several hundred wild animals of many types were used.

The cast includes John Buckler as the animal collector; Benita Hume, who betrays Tarzan to the trainer, and William Henry as the cousin of Jane, seeking her in the wilds.

Weissmuller, incidentally, had to increase his Tarzan vocabulary. He learned Swahili dialect to talk with the natives in the new picture.

The role of the gangster is portrayed by Howard Phillips. The plot is enlivened toward the end when it is discovered that there is another weird criminal among the passengers. The character is brought to life by Nedda Harrigan. Carlyle Moore, Jr., plays the part of a co-pilot who is put to sleep with a drug by the "killer," while John Little has the role of the G-Man who is handcuffed by the murderer with his own nippers.
