ALONG THE WAY - ALL APPEARS TO BE QUIET - NO NEWS

No one knows why the garden of Robert Burch grows so well. It must be because he is living in Raleigh and is leaving all the work for some one else to do. He comes home every Saturday, looks it over and then goes back to Raleigh on Sunday.

Then Marquis Lawrence keeps bragging about his garden, but his neighbors say that there must not be much to it as he never has anything to give away.

Tom Hamilton worked hard on a garden, saw that it would never amount to anything and left for Mississippi. The "remains" of the garden are rest-

DAWES & OLIVER GET NEW GARAGES

Members Of Industrial Arts Department Of High School Build Garages As Part Of Course.

Members of the Industrial Arts Department of Roxboro high school constructed two garages in this city before school was out and these two garages would be a credit to any carpenter. The two garages that were built were for S. A. Oliver, chief of police, and R. B. Dawes, Mayor of Roxboro. Both garages are for single cars only and are built of wood with composition roof.

The buildings were constructed under the direction of Mr. Glenn Titus, teacher of this department, but the boys did all the work. They worked in shifts and were not absent from their classrooms for any great length of time. About six days were required for each garage.

In each instance the owners of the property furnished all material and the boys did the work. It is understood that they received credit on their report for the work that was done on the buildings.

MANY REGISTER ON LAST DAY

Possible 6,000 Names On Registration Books, But Many Have Moved Away

Local registrars over the county reported that registration for the coming election had been heavier this time than for many previous years. One registrar stated that it was heavier than for the National election.

Yesterday was the last day and those who failed to register or were not registered will have to wait until the next time the books are open.

Person County probably has around 6,000 registered voters, but there has never been an election that attracted that many voters. This county does well if the vote goes to 3,000. Many who are registered have moved away and in many instances the names of dead people are on the books. However, the last count showed about 6,000.

Predicts Germany Will Abandon Her Four Year Economic Plan

Professor Harold Meyer Says Plan Is Larger Restrictive And Believes Methods Eventually Will Be Substituted For It - Says Germany Still Has Serious Internal Problems - Thinks Jew Ban Permanent

Editorial Note: Although Professor Meyer personally does not look with favor upon any system of dictatorship, he presents here, with observations of the European scene as he finds it.

By HAROLD D. MEYER
Kenan Traveling Professor,
University of North Carolina.

This is the second of the three articles devoted to European conditions. The first presented events of the immediate past which have lessened tension and also described some of the larger problems confronting the continent. This article will attempt an outline of Italy and Germany—the two countries so prominently in the public eye due to their leadership and forms of government. Individual situations and conditions will be stressed. No attempt has been made to compare or contrast the two.

These individual conditions color the picture as a whole and tend to create pressure from within that provoke tension without.

First, let us consider the situation in Italy. For the first time since the ancient Roman Empire Italy is completely united and effectively organized under one government. The past 15 years have witnessed a knitting together process which has produced good results.

Two very simple principals have created this condition—the first expresses the idea of superiority—"we are good", "we are the best" and like connotations, while the second is based on the old principle that "in unity there is strength." Both of these forces have led to a high spirit of nationalism and a fervid patriotism. Nothing has been left undone to create this condition and build it into a power that can assert itself at any time.

Unity Now Achieved

When Mussolini came into power in 1922 Italy was in terrible shape. Today she stands as one of the strongest nations in Europe. Working in the basis of the two simple principles he has transformed the nation into absolite oneness and given the people a sense of security. Every citizen possesses a definite responsibility to the government and has a feeling of pride in this contribution no matter how small it may be. This has been created a totalitarian state in almost perfect form.

If I have caught the process of reasoning in Italy it runs thus: 1. Italy feels that in the past few decades she has had to appear as a second rate nation and accept unjust and unsatisfactory proposals and decisions in international affairs. This was true because she was weak. She, therefore, needed to be strong.

2. There was an utter lack of unity which persisted through the Great War and the years immediately following. Italy must be united—Italy for Italians and Italians of Italy—became the patriotic slogan.

3. Through events of history her empire had been destroyed and her colonial possessions distributed. She must build back her empire—this was essential to her life and growth. However the conquest of Abyssinia became a necessity and its success gave her Empire rating and re-established in her a sense of pride and ownership. She believes that she will contribute much to the advancement of the Ethiopians as well as afford to her population colonization opportunities and military values.

This reasoning can be summed up in one word—strength—Italy must be strong. That has been and is her task. She has exerted every ounce of energy to build into a powerful nation and the results speak for themselves. Today Italy must be accounted for in any movement involving Europe. I believe Mussolini is the most powerful man in Europe today and has brought Italy

TIMES GOES TO SEVEN COLUMNS

Major Change Made Last Week, But Will Require Some Time For Adjustment

160 Inches More Per Paper

This edition of the Person County Times, and also last Thursday's edition, is larger by one column to the page than any of the readers of this paper have ever received before. The change was made last week and will be continued unless complications set in that are not expected.

The old size of a page in this paper was 120 inches, now it is 140 inches and the eight pages make a total of 160 column inches more to each eight page paper.

Making this change required a large amount of time and may take several weeks before the press and folder can be adjusted to the new size paper.

The publishers hope to be able to give the readers a better paper by virtue of having more space for reading matter as well as for ads.

In about one year the Times has made two major changes—first, changing from a weekly to a semi-weekly and second, from a six column paper per page to a seven column paper.

One Really Comes From Woodsdale, But Roxboro Has Good Claim

Two Athletes And One Business Man

He has taken part in various activities of the student body during his four years at Elon.
