

SCHOOL BOARD AUTHORIZES WORK AT ALLENSVILLE

Architect Advises Detailed Plans Will Be Started At Once.

The Person county school board yesterday authorized County Superintendent R. B. Griffin to take all necessary steps to get work on the new $43,000 Allensville school building started as soon as possible.

In a telephone conversation with Griffin yesterday morning, William H. Dietrick, Raleigh architect, advised that he would proceed with detailed plans for the school rapidly as possible.

"It would seem, however," Griffin said, "that it would take until early November before the Board of Education can call for bids."

Yesterday's session of the school board was held Saturday instead of the regular time Monday because several members of the board are connected with tobacco markets.

The new Allensville school project received definite approval from the P. W. A. Thursday when local education authorities received notification from H. T. Cole, regional director in Atlanta. The new $43,000 building will be constructed under a special P. W. A. loan of $24,000 and a grant of $19,636.

Along The Way With the Editor

Along the way it was rumored that Bill Walker was scared to death last week. He was afraid that he might have to go to war and that was exactly what Bill did not want to do. Some of the boys said that he was figuring on claiming exemption on account of his large bay window. Others said that Uncle Sam didn't want men like Bill anyway and that he had nothing to fear.

James Long, Jr., managed to beat Gene Thompson in a set of tennis last week. He did a rather good job of it, too and now he plans to meet all comers. Thinks he is pretty good and boasts that he is champion of Lamar street. Attention, Charlie Harris.

Saw John Ellington in Roxboro last week. John lives in Oxford now and doesn't come to Roxboro much. He "sorter" handled things over here for Mr. Hancock in the last congressional race and told the Roxboro boys that Hancock would win by thousands of votes. Since the affair turned out differently John has made headquarters in some other city.

A man walked up to Sam Merritt the other day and said, "Are you Mr. Champ Winstead." Talk about insults, if that isn't the limit. It is understood that Sam walked off, highly indignant and did not even reply to the fellow.

Along the way we heard that Gus Deering is "stuck up" because he has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Kiwanis Club.

John Jones, former county school mechanic, is laughing long and loud. John is thinking about the hard winter that is coming and what a time he once had with those school trucks every year. Now he has a nice warm spot in the postoffice and can spend the winter listening to Henry O'Briant and K. L. Street.

Ladies Of That Community Meet With New Home Demonstration Agent.

By MISS VELMA BEAM

Home Demonstration Agent On Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 28, an interested group of women in the Bushy Fork Community gathered together to meet Miss Velma Beam, Home Demonstration Agent and to formulate plans for the use of the Extension Service in their community.

The meeting was opened with the Lord's Prayer, after which Mrs. B. B. Bullock, hostess on this occasion, introduced Miss Beam and the group. Miss Beam outlined the aims of a Home Demonstration Club as set-up by the Extension Service of our state, pointing out the fact that these aims are all of practical nature.

All the "frills and furbelows" much talked of in the past have long since been dropped from this program and everything possible is being done to help the homemaker more fully realize that the profession of home-making is a responsibility, demanding her best thoughts, skills and ideals. At the same time this cooperative club work promotes a spirit of friendliness, good will and neighborliness in the community which helps the growth of a community as much as any other.

A statements from the person saying that he has never seen a motion picture will be all that is necessary for admittance. ### SUFFERS STROKE

Mrs. Minnie Riley suffered a stroke of paralysis Saturday morning at one o'clock. At this writing her condition is unchanged.

Prices Remain Good; Heavy Sales Expected During Next Week.

Poundage on the local market came close to the 600,000 mark by the end of Friday's sales despite the inclement weather prevailing both Thursday and Friday which discouraged hauling of heavy offerings.

With fair and cooler weather expected for next week, the market is expected to move into stride for this season's goal set unofficially at six million pounds for the year.

Everything points to heavy sales Monday and Tuesday as the local market moves into its second week of sales. Prices continued close to Tuesday's opening day average of $22 per hundred pounds.

As the Old Belt moves into the second week of sales tomorrow, market officials expect a sharp upturn in prices as better grades are expected to pour into the local houses. Last week's offerings were largely confined to poor and medium grades, it was indicated.

The local market got off to a fine start in the first week of sales and everything points to the best season in the recent history of the market. From every indication it seems likely that the Roxboro market will reach the official goal of 6,000,000 pounds set for this season despite the fact that some tobacco has already been hauled to earlier opening markets before this belt's opening.

NEW ACTIVITIES IN YANCEYVILLE

New Hosiery Mill And Theatre To Locate In Neighboring Town.

Things are looking up over in neighboring Yanceyville, according to Thursday's issue of the Caswell Messenger which announces that a new $225,000 hosiery mill will be located there as soon as the building can be erected.

Also in the same issue was the announcement of a new theatre which will be completed within the next 30 days.

The new plant will be operated by the Caswell Knitting Mills, Inc., an organization financed by a Burlington man, which will place into operation 14 full hosiery machines valued at $175,000. These machines will be housed in a modern plant expected to cost approximately $50,000.

The building is being constructed by an organization of people in Yanceyville and throughout Caswell county who are subscribing the money for the structure, when the full capacity of the building, 28 machines, is installed, some 200 people will be employed with an annual payroll of about $300,000 annually.

The new theatre will have a seating capacity of about 424. Around $2,000 will be sent in repairs on the building already leased by the Carolina Amusement Company who will operate the theatre.

Both of these developments were launched through the efforts of the Yanceyville Rotary club which has been working for some time on both projects.
