Marshall Goldberg And Brud Holland, of 1937 Stars,, Leading Parade.

New York - Since nine of the players who made the 1937 Associated Press All-American football team were seniors, the race SID LUCKMAN for positions on this year's allstar squad is bound to be an unusually lusty and wide-open one.

(Biggie) Goldberg of Pittsburgh and Jerome (Brud) Holland of Cornell, have gained a lap on the field by submitting very determined bids with the season barely started.

The two holdovers, Marshall FOR '38 HONORS

Columbia Back Is First Real Candidate For 1938 All-American Grid Honors

New York-Sid Luckman is the first real 1938 candidate for an all-American position.

He plays more left halfback than is good for opponents of Columbia's spectacular Light Blues, whom experts say could not have requised Yale without

Luckman was a towering figure on a weak team last fall. He was almost as brilliant in the Morningside Heights club's 21-18 defeat by Army a year ago as he was against the Elis this trip running a kickoff back 80 yards for a touchdown, among other things. After that engagement, Lieut. Gar Davidson, who won places on the second and retired as the Cadets' coach, called him the perfect football player the greatest back that he

He gave a demonstration of the aerial art which would cause a Sammy Baugh, Benny Friedman, Harry Newman, or Dixie Howell to snort with envy, completing 10 of 17 for a total of 169 yards. He did not make a poor pass. Not once did he miss his man. The passes that were incomplete were dropped or bob-

Ace of Air

Luckman is no gazelle, but he is far from being slow and is a determined runner. He is a blocker, a tackler, an imaginative and commanding field general and signal caller, a safety man who makes no mistakes, and the slickest kind of a faker. So while he is entitled to his campus title of Ace Luckman, king of the air, he is vastly more than that.

Lou Little, his coach, calls his prize senior the most remarkable passer he ever set eyes on.

You drag out the dictionary of superlatives in discussing Luck-

Grizzled observers consider his 50-yard pass in the Yale game the most unusual football feat they ever witnessed.

Shortly before the half ended, fourth down, with six yards to go, Luckman went back in kick formation, faked a run, faded a short pass, shook off two tacklers who apparently had him pinned, and made his Titantic toss. The ball settled in Frank Stulgaitis' arms in the end zone for a touch-

That wasn't the way the play was supposed to go, but Luckman is an instinctive athlete capable of making his own way and picking his spots when something goes awry.

Like Ken Strong

Luckman stands 5 feet 11 inches and comes in at 194 pounds, six of which he lost in the Yale Game and picked right up again. He is a product of Erasmus Hall high school of Brooklyn. He plays another varsity sport or two but not very well.

In case you haven't heard the statistical details, he's handling the keystone sack assignment for the New York Yankees, baseball's No. 1 ball club. He's 24, up from the Coast league by way of Newark, can hit in the accepted theory of the Yanks - which is that you can't field a home run - and can field anything and everything in his general direction.

His single Wednesday prolonged the Yank's winning rally in the series opener. He also clouted a double and turned in the fielding gem of the game full of classy fielding — taking a short from Ripper Collins' bat with his back to the plate to rob Ripper of a sure hit.

Gordon started out this season as Tony Lazzeri's official successor on the Yankees' varsity, which was no mean job. His start was strictly poor. So manager Joe Mc-Carthy benched him.

For a while it looked like curtains for our hero. So one day, to while away the time, he eloped to Elkton, Md., with his campus sweetheart in his days at the University of Oregon. Some few days later the Yanks, trailing 2-1 in a ball game, nominated Joe for pinch-hitting job with a mate on first base in the ninth inning. The rival pitcher served up a high inside pitch, and Gordon parked it among the paying customer in the left field stands.

Duke-Tech Battle Heads Homecoming

Wademen And Forces Of Bill Alexander Continue Rivalry Saturday.

Durham, Oct. 8 - While the ootball Blue Devils of Duke were occupied with Andy Kerr's Colgate Red Raiders at Buffalo, N. Y., this afternoon, the attention of the home folks had already begun to turn toward next Saturday's gala homecoming clash with the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech in Duke Stadium.

Of course, Blue Devil followers, to the man, were deeply concerned with the outcome of this afternoon's intersectional tilt which will mean so much to the men of Wallace Wade. They were clustered about their radios and watching anxiously for bulletins. But this Georgia Tech game — the sixth in a series which has become famous all over the country for its breath-taking episodes - has aroused early interest in no uncertain fashion.

For five years now, Duke and Georgia Tech have been meeting on the gridiron. The Blue Devils hold the edge in the series with three victories to two for the Yellow Jackets. Each one of the five games has been a grabbed victory in the last two minutes of play to triumph, 20-19.

Duke-Georgia-Tech football relations have developed one of the finest coaching rivalries in the history of the game. Coach Wallace Wade of the Blue Devils and Bill Alexander of the Yellow Chicago - Joe Gordon is with- Jackets are ranked highly among

ROXBORO FANS PLAN TO ATTEND ALL-STAR GAME

Slaughter And Riggs To Perform Before Homefolks; Vander Meer To

Many residents of Roxboro and Mebane are planning to go to Durham this afternoon to see their favorite sons-Enos Slaughter and Lew Riggs-perform in the all-star game at Durham Athletic park.

The contest, presenting an array of major and minor league baseball stars, will get under way at 3 o'clock with Double-No-Hit Johnny VanderMeer on the mound for one team and Buck Newsom for the other.

Slaughter, Roxboro youth, held down the rightfield post for the St. Louis Cardinals during the 1938 season and he did a good job of it. He hit the ball at a lively clip and won several ball games with his home run ability.

Riggs, whose home is in Mebane, is the regular third baseman of the Cincinnati Reds. He played a bang up game all year and played an important part in the Reds drive from last place to fourth place in the National league race.

Leon Fields, who arranged the game, announced today that Gilbert English, of Kansas City, may be unable to play here today because of his team's participation in the American association play-

Fields, however, said he has arranged for Hal King, sensational Jersey City third baseman, to replace English. King only a few weeks ago was purchased by the New York Giants and ordered to report to Bill Terry's training camp next spring. His home is in Smithfield.

Other stars slated to play today are Bennie Huffman, Mace Brown, Bobby Durham, Chubby Dean, Floyd Young, Wallace Goodwin, Beverly Ferrell, Dusty Cooke, Buster Maynard, Dewey Williams, Kent Wicker, Julius Beck, Jimmy Bucher, Lynn celebration will take on more Johnson, Paul Dunlap and Jack
