Family Loyalty Highlights Of Film At Palace

The significant words of the old adage, "united we stand, divided we fall," strike the very keynote of the human theme of "Mother Carey's Chickens," which is on the screen of the Palace theatre here today and tomorrow. The screen version of the widely read novel by Kate Douglas Wiggin concerns the brave efforts of a fatherless New England family to stick together. Anne Shirley and Ruby Keeler are cast as the younger and older sisters respectively, while Fay Bainter is seen as their courageous mother. The death of their Navy Captain-father starts a train of unfortunate events that require the mother and her four children to combine all their ingenuity in order to exist on a meager income. James Ellison and Frank Albertson bring romance into the Carey family in their courtships of Anne Shirley and Ruby Keeler. Comedy also plays a prominent role in the lives of the Careys in the hilarious climax featuring a supposed haunted house.
