OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE

The Person County Bar Association has passed a resolution asking that the general assembly pass such an act as is necessary to provide for the election of the county judge and prosecuting attorney by a vote of the people. The lawyers also believe that the judgeship should be open to lawyers as well as laymen.

We think the lawyers are right. There seems to be no good reason why the people of this county should not have a voice in naming the judge and solicitor of the county court. The voters are allowed a voice in naming district judges and solicitors, Mayor and other important officers. Why not let the voice of the people speak concerning the county

We also agree with the lawyers in their idea that the judgeship be open to lawyers. There is mo reason why a good lawyer could not be a good judge. To tell the truth he should have many points in his favor that the average layman does not have.

This resolution, that was mentioned at the beginning of the editorial, has been called to the attention of Person County's representative, Ed Warren. Mr. Warren will probably be in Roxboro Monday in an effort to discover how the people feel about the idea and if sentiment is favorable he will ask the general assembly to pass such a measure as is necessary.

DOLLAR DAYS

Dollar Day are good things. We have no idea how much business the merchants of Roxboro did last Thursday, Friday and Saturday, but they were helped some by the special event. Then too, the customers was helped because merchandise was really sold at bargain prices. Many people came to Roxboro Saturday just to pick up a few bargains and when they went into the stores they naturally bought more merchandise than they planned to. There's no harm in spending money as long as you have it and use it for items that are worthwhile. Money spending helps everyone and we have to keep money circulating if we all are to get our part of it.

It might be a good thing if the Chamber of Commerce would sponsor dollar days two or three times a year.

BAWES RETIRES

After five terms as mayor of this city R. B. Dawes has decided to retire. Dawes has served the city well and has made a good mayor. He made a few people mad, not many, and generally kept everyone satisfied as far as was possible.

Dawes went about his work in a quiet, easy manner and never failed to do his duty. He was the same mayor to rich that he was to poor and tried to treat all on the same basis.

Being mayor of Roxboro is a hard job. It's probably harder to filled heads, plumper kernels. give satisfaction in a small city than in a large one. In these latter days which have proved trying to men's souls. and also their soles, as they have pounded the pavement looking for jobs, a college degree, particular. ly one in the upper brackets like a degree of Doctor of Philosophy, is considered in some quarters as a handicap rather than an advan-

Some business men are inclined to look on the Doctor of Philosophy as something of a pedant, whose interest in the fine points of intellectual matters, disqualifies rather than qualifies him for concentration on matters of business.

But this tradition about the place of the highly educated man in the world of business affairs has had a jolt from the figures presented by The Princeton Alumni Weekly, which reports that of the fifty-two men who received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy last June, fifty-one have jobs, and the one Doctor who did not get a job was kept from employment by illness.

From those fgures, it would seem that a degree is not a very handicap in the job market. In fact these statistics should give fresh impetus to scholasticism.

Turns On Tears At Director's Nod

A cryng contest on a film set may have determined two things: young less_experienced dramatic actresses start weeping slowly, and can't stop so soon-but veteran dramatic actresses cry more while they're about it.

In the contest at at the Warner Bros. Studio during the filming Daughter," the comedy opening to the Dolly Madison Theatre tomorrow and Tuesday, were Priscilla Lane and Fay Bainter.

Neither belongs to the class of actress who has to have menthol blown into the eyes. Just a nod from the director is all they need.

Miss Lane took one minute, fifteen seconds by the script girl's stop-watch before she wept enough to start the tears rolling down her cheeks.

Miss Bainter had to start dryeyed and cry as soon as possible after the scene had started. It took her twenty-two seconds. She agitator, may on his present stopped almost immediately after "fast" actually acomplish what the scene was over, but while she he has six times tried before: was at it tears streamed from her
