New Dean Of Students Now At G C

Greensboro — The election of Dean Mary Ivy Swank, of Huntingdon College, Montgomery, Alabama, as dean of students of Greensboro College, has just been announced by President Luther L. Gobbel, who says that Dean Swank will succeed Miss Anne Garrard, who has resigned after four years of efficient service in Greensboro College.

Dean Swank, a native of Cape Girardeau, Missouri, is a member of a family of distinguished educators. Her father was, for a long time before his death, head of the science department of Missouri State Teachers' College, where Dean Swank did her undergraduate work. Her mother, also, has had extensive experience in college work. A brother, Dr. H. M. Ivy, is superintendent of the public schools of Meridian, Mississippi, and is a former president of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Dean Swank has had considerable teaching and administrative experience. After the death of her husband in 1930, she attended the George Peabody College, Nashville, Tennessee, where she received both the B. S. and A. M. degrees in 1932, following which she taught in the high schools of Meridian and Clarksdale, Mississippi. She has also studied in the field of guidance and personnel in Chicago and has attended Teachers College, Columbia University. For the past three years she has served as dean of students of Huntingdon College. She comes to her work in Greensboro, according to President Gobbel, highly recommended.

She is travelling this summer in Canada and on the Pacific coast she will arrive in Greensboro the latter part of August.

Just Who Is On President's List, However, Is Favorite Guessing Game In Capitol Cloakrooms, But There Is No Unanimity

Washington, President Roosevelt's observation last week that there were a dozen, charming young men who might be classed as potential presidential candidates set political tongues wagging so fast that by today the list had been built up to three times that number.

Just who was on the President's list was a favorite guessing game in capitol cloakrooms, but there was no unanimity of opinion. Mr. Roosevelt did not mention any names, merely telling reporters who wanted to talk about Paul V. McNutt that he thought the new federal security administration would not be found running as a candidate any more than a dozen others, some of them in the cabinet.

Senator Ellender (D., La.), said the President's list "might include:"

Harry Hopkins, secretary of commerce and former relief chieftain; Frank Murphy, attorney general and former governor of Michigan; Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to England and former security commission head; W. O. Douglas, new supreme court justice and former SEC chief; Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture; and Robert H. Jackson, solicitor general.

The Louisiana senator pointed out that all of these, like McNutt, held important places in the new deal and were in general agreement with Roosevelt policies.

Senator Adams (D., Col.), who frequently has differed with the administration, said the senate alone provided more than a dozen potential candidates and listed these Democrats: Senator Barkley (Ky.), Clark (Mo.), Byrd (Va.), Byrnes (S. C.), Harrison (Miss.), Reynolds (N. C.), and Donahey (Ohio).

If the President included Republican possibilities, Adams said the following senators should be listed: Vandenberg (Mich.), Taft (Ohio), Bridges (N. H.), and Austin (Vt.).

Senator Minton (D., Ind.), one of the leaders in the McNutt presidential boom, when asked about the presidential list of a dozen, said "I don't know of anybody but McNutt and possibly Roosevelt."

As to Republicans, Minton said "My favorite is Vandenberg. I really think he's the ablest citizen the Republicans offer. He could be very satisfactory, if we really want a conservative president."

Among possible Republican candidates, other senators, both Republican and Democrats mentioned Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney.

Senator Bridges, whose friends have been actively seeking the Republican nomination for him, said the Democratic list probably included "Senator Clark and Governor Stark of Missouri, Senator Lucas of Illinois, Senator Wheeler and Postmaster General Farley."

Bridges said the Republican list included "Senator Vandenberg, Taft and Lodge and Governors Bricker (Ohio) and James (Pa.). Senator Norris, (Ind. Neb.) summed it all up:

"I know there are at least three or four dozen who want to be president or at least could be coaxed," the veteran Nebraska independent said with a chuckle.

SISTERS STOP AIR SERVICE

Tulsa, Okla.—Three sisters who run a tea room adjoining the local airport have halted all night mail and passenger service via American Airlines by erecting two radio masts on their property which the Civil Aeronautics Authority has described as a "grave hazard to operation." The sisters claim that roaring planes drive away their customers and demand $2,500 for their property including the masts.

Farm And Home Week Offers Much Variety

Mention almost any subject on farming and homemaking, and you'll find it on the program of State College's 36th annual Farm and Home Week, the rural family's "educational vacation."

From the registration on Monday, July 31, until the closing feature Friday, August 4, the program has been comfortably filled with a well-balanced mixture of entertainment and instruction.

"We don't want those who have never attended a Farm and Home Week to get the idea that the program is stiff and formal,"

John W. Goodman, assistant extension director, said, "because we have tried to strike a good balance between classroom work and lectures and the lighter side."

Officials are looking for a large attendance of men this year, since the program for this group has been changed considerably so as to include topics and exhibits closely associated with the average grower's work. For example, an excellent display of farm machinery will be on exhibit. In addition, tours to the various farms of the college have been arranged at which the visitors will see fine-blooded cattle, swine, poultry, and workstock.

A wide variety of subjects has been planned for the separate sessions of men and women during the mornings. Some of the topics include farm income, building soils, fertilizer placement, single variety cotton communities, and the AAA program for men, and handicrafts, care of mothers and babies, menu planning, home beautification, and style hints for the women.

For five dollars or less, not including transportation, the average farmer or farm woman can attend all five days of this event. Complete details may be secured by writing John W. Goodman, State College Station, Raleigh.

"Million Dollar Legs" Feature Betty And Jack

Those scrappy newlyweds, Betty Grable and Jackie Coogan, who have patched things up again, appear together for the second time in the hilariously funny campus comedy, "Million Dollar Legs," which arrives today for two days at the Dolly Madison theatre. In the picture, though, it's John Hartley who has the key to Betty Co-ed's heart.

Differing refreshingly from previous college films, "Million Dollar Legs," is the humorous and well-knit story of youth revolting against the benevolent despotism of a liberal donor who runs the college because of his fat contributions, and of the student's successful efforts in getting what they want.

And that's where the fun begins! Deprived of all collegiate athletics except basketball, the students are determined to have a college crew. The way they solve their problem, without the paternalism of the board, forms the funniest situation ever filmed!

REFLECTIONS

By R. M. SPENCER IN SPIKE OF IT

Go to the mouth of any river. What do you find? Debris of all kinds littering the beach. It floated down the river; when the current no longer carried it, it came to rest.

Man's inclination is to float. It is hard work to go against the current. Were it not for that something within our hearts which says, "Keep on," "Fight," "Your reward is in white water," we, too, would branch ourselves, away from the stream of life, on the shore of inactivity. There our ambitions would bleach like the timbers of a shipwreck.

Man in his search for wealth finds it where the going is the toughest. He finds his greatest contentment when he is busiest; his wits pitted against the many, his ability against the ability of others, his strength and endurance pitted against the strength and endurance of his contemporaries. Happiness comes from winning in spite of obstacles.

Swift water cuts the deepest canyon; success is found in the conflicts of life. Breathe the stream! Fight your way to the top! You can! All it takes is perseverance.

Better Service is Our Aim. It Costs No More. SPENCER'S FUNERAL HOME ROXBORO, N. C.
