

Warehousemen Of City Are Making Plans For Opening

Buyers and Citizens Generally are Pleased at Thought That Market Will Soon Open.

With the opening date of the Roxboro Tobacco Market announced for October 10, Roxboro warehousemen are making plans to be ready for the opening day. All four houses will operate.

Everyone predicts a large amount of tobacco for the opening day, but the Warehousemen are trying to create as much extra room as is possible and they expect to take care of many thousand of pounds of tobacco.

Although it had been expected, there was general rejoicing in this city when it was announced that this belt would open its houses at the same time that other houses opened in other belts.

Warehousemen in Roxboro are confident that this market will sell more tobacco this year than it has sold in any one year during the past several. They also appear to believe that tobacco will bring a fair price.

General sentiment over the county is that this county will vote for control in a big way. There are some who do not favor control, but they appear to be few in number.

So far, growers in Person county report that their tobacco is in excellent shape. There has been no losses to speak of and tobacco has not damaged in any way.

The Roxboro Chamber of Commerce issues an invitation to everyone to visit Roxboro on the opening day, Tuesday, October 10.

Terms of New Contract Calls for No Extra Expense of Operation.

Roxboro is to be a brighter city from now on. City officials have recently signed a new contract with the Carolina Power and Light company whereby the city gets more electricity at the same cost.

Eight one-thousand candle power lights will replace four old lights that had only four hundred candle power. This gives four extra lights in addition to the increased candle power.

Fifteen six-hundred candle power lights at intersections will replace lights that had been of one-hundred and two-fifty candle power.

All other lights of the city will be replaced with two-hundred and fifty candle power lights where there had been only one hundred.

All in all Roxboro will be about sixty percent lighter and there will be no extra cost as far as "juice" is concerned.

The new light shades or brackets are different from the old and are supposed to be a big improvement.

Work of installing the new lights and brackets has already started and will be continued until finished.

City Manager Harris declined to comment concerning a "white-way" for Main street of Roxboro although it has been suggested on numerous occasions.

Along The Way With the Editor

It all happened in the Times' office, one day last week. About the time that Hugh Woods walked into the office, Maynard Clayton discovered that there was a big rat in his desk drawer. He called Dick Puckett to get the broom and they proceeded to run the rat from the drawer. The rat jumped out, Maynard "stomped" at the rat with all his two hundred and some pounds and hit the foot of Hugh Woods. Mr. Woods didn't cry—neither did he laugh. He "sorter" made a wry face and said that it was alright. Then he went over to his store and got down a bottle of horse liniment and rubbed his foot until he thought that it was in fair shape. Our latest report is that he is getting on fine and is now able to laugh at the entire matter.

One night at the fair "Bud" Latta thought he saw someone slipping in under the fence. "Bud" went down to apprehend the little rascal and found that he was trying to catch our own chief of police, Sam Oliver. It was all a trick of the chief who had hidden in the weeds on the lower side in the hopes that "Bud" would get a sight of him.

W. D. Merritt plans to see all the home games of Carolina and then see all of Duke's home games when Carolina is not playing in Chapel Hill. When he misses a game you know that he is ill or flat broke. He makes no predictions for Carolina, but does think that they will have a fair team.

Seen on the Country Club golf course, Marquis Lawrence, Tom Hamilton and Marvin Vick. Each and every man a preacher and trying to play golf on a new course. It is understood that church members were not allowed to get near enough to hear their conversation or their exclamations.
