

CORN WEEVILS THRIVE AT THIS SEASON OF YEAR

Fourteen Per Cent OF North Carolina Corn Crop Lost Annually Through Weevil Destruction

Weevils annually take a toll of about 14 per cent of North Carolina's corn crop. They begin their attack in the field, but when the corn is harvested and stored in the barn, conditions are very favorable for the rapid increase of the pests.

B. B. Fulton, research entomologist of State college, says that carbon disulphide is the most practical material for control of corn weevils. Nothing is cheaper, more effective, or more readily available, he explained.

"The first step in controlling the insects," Fulton advised, "is to thoroughly clean the storage bin or crib and treat the wood-work with any odorless, tasteless, water-white petroleum similar to that contained in commercial fly sprays.

"Accumulations of old grain and floor sweepings from the previous crop should be completely removed and burned, or if it is to be used as feed, that is where the carbon disulphide treatment comes in.

"Sweepings may be placed in a tight bin or barrel and the chemical poured directly over it, using the fluid at the rate of three-fourth of a pint to a barrel of sweepings. The container should be covered immediately with a double thickness of heavy wrapping paper, and tied tightly around the top. The fumes of the carbon disulphide do the work. Leave the bin or barrel sealed for 24 hours to allow the fumes to penetrate all portions of the sweepings."

Fulton pointed out that carbon disulphide is very inflammable and explosive chemical, and should be used with care. Fire of any kind, excessive heat, or frictional or static electricity should not be allowed near the containers being fumigated with the material, he said.

RUPTURE

Shield Expert Here Again

E. J. MEINHARDI, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be in Danville, Va., at the Danville Hotel, Saturday only, Nov. 18th, from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M. and 6 P. M. to 8 P. M. MR. MEINHARDI says: The Meinhardt Shield is a tremendous improvement — well known for producing immediate results. It closes the opening in 10 days on the average—regardless of size or location of Rupture and no matter how hard you work or strain. It is waterproof and has no leg straps or cumbersome arrangements. (No Surgery or Injection Treatments used.) Mr. Meinhardt has been coming here for 15 years.

Caution: If neglected—Rupture may cause weakness, backache, constipation, nervousness, stomach pains, etc., or sudden death from strangulation.

Men having large Ruptures which have returned after Surgical Operations or Injection Treatments are also invited. When all others fail—see MEINHARDI. He will be pleased to demonstrate to you privately without charge. (Only men invited.) White only.

Turkey Growers Must Take Care Of Future Needs

Cartoonists picture November and December at the critical time for the turkey who struts under the shadow of the upraised axe. It is also a critical time for turkey growers and turkey breeders, says C. F. Parrish, Extension poultry specialist at State College.

If the growers expect to save his own hatching eggs for incubation, and this is the wisest practice where good birds are kept, then marketing time is also selection time, Parrish declared. The flock should be culled carefully to keep the very best of the hen turkeys for the breeding flock and perhaps a few choice toms for mating with these, or for exchange.

The Extension poultryman advised turkey growers to weigh the quality of their flock carefully before deciding whether to buy hatching eggs or to raise them from the old flock. "The safest way of introducing new blood into the flock is through eggs from a reliable breeder whose flock is healthy and vigorous," he said. "The next safest way is to buy poults and keep them separated for a time to allow any disease to make itself evident. Buying mature birds adds some risk of introducing disease or parasites."

Turkeys held over for breeding purposes should be handled under a slightly different system from birds fattened for sale, Parrish stated. He recommended a good standard growing mash and a mixed scratch grain containing not more than one-third corn. The mash should be well balanced.

About four weeks before egg production usually starts, the birds selected as breeders should go on an even richer breeder diet, a mash that contains more vitamins, more mineral, and more protein than the growing diet, and with grain limited to one-fifth pound a day for each bird.

TERRACING

The demand for terracing by Johnston county farmers is still far ahead of the actual amount of work the terracing unit will be able to accomplish this fall, reports Assistant Farm Agent R. M. Holder.
